The Haiku Stairs is an historic site. It should be considered a State Treasure

I believe that the Haiku Stairs should be renovated and opened as a State Park. An entrance fee could be used to create a parking lot and provide security/entrance payment. There could be an age/ability requirement to ensure safety. There are many other examples that work: Hanalei Bay, Diamond Head, etc.

Please consider keeping this as one of the notable sites on Oahu.

My experience on the matter is on the basis of my employment and education including assessment and design for repairs to structures, as well as leading several trail maintenance workdays, under the auspices of the Friends of Haiku Stairs (FHS) organization, prior to the BWS disallowance of such volunteer activities that were (and still are) offered to maintain their assets including the physical stairs and the environment along the route. My position is that the arguments for demolition are unconvincing and preserving and adding to the equity that is built into the stairs is an obviously superior plan. Specific concerns related to this action are feasibly addressed in ways that have allready been discussed. I read through the comments posted to date. Here are some thoughts addressing the concerns of the demolition advocates: Many area residents complain about irritations arising from people outside their valley traversing their neighborhood, yet the pragmatic solution of managed access routing visitors in an controlled way with several route options outside of the residential areas, with limited traffic impacts does not seem to be considered at all by these people. Nuisances such as trespassing, trash, and other public disturbances are police enforcement matters, and can be handled as they are anywhere else. Managed access can provide transport to the trailhead from elsewhere, limiting pedestrian traffic in sensitive areas. Some testifiers comment on the physical hazards, and disrepair. Personal experience indicates deterioration is localized and manageable with routine maintenance, and isolated repairs. The assertion that this is an attractive nuisance would only hold valid if the stairs are negligently allowed to deteriorate into an actual nuisance. If they are used, regularly inspected, repaired as needed, and maintained, they would not offer any unreasonable risks to people. Costs and liability are concerns are raised. I believe the facility can be managed in a financially sustainable way by an entity that shoulders obligations for appropriate liability and ongoing maintenance. Regarding rescue costs, I understand incidents actually occurring on the stairs are infrequent, allowing people to traverse the stairs without fear of punitive enforcement would probably make this situation better, so there is less traffic in nighttime hours. Some advocates for demolition mention returning the area to a natural state. Personal experience is that much of the trail is populated with invasive species, history has shown that the invasive species control efforts by the FHS is effective and beneficial to the many interesting native plant communities that populate the route. Without the stairs, and access to them, this important work cannot be continued. With the heavily invaded state of Hawaii's flora, including the route along the Haiku stairs, human stewardship is necessary to keep native plants living in their indigenous places under the pressures of invasive species. It is notable that the BWS touts their support for invasive species control efforts in their Watershed Partnership programs. Removal of the Haiku Stairs should be acknowledged to be countervailing to the praiseworthy BWS supported invasive species control work. There is a proposal mentioned in a couple comments to relocate the stairs to somewhere else on Oahu. From technical feasibility, historic integrity, and watershed preservation standpoints - this is a patently ridiculous proposition. Each segment of the stairs is affixed to the slope with four 3-foot long, 7/8-inch diameter steel pins driven into the rock, and each segment is connected together with steel links, damage is inevitable when such an assembly is removed. The equity value here is mostly in the location. If others want to create a copy-cat stair system elsewhere, they should go for it! However, it would be ill advised to employ used materials for such an endeavor, the majority of the cost is in the labor and access and not intrinsic to the materials and fabrication. The fate of the scrap material after the proposed demolition action is not germane to the discussion of what happens to the currently existing stairs. Please do the right thing and honor the efforts of past generation and the value they have created in the Haiku Stairs. These should be a celebrated asset that is run in a sustainable way. Managed access to the stairs achieves these goals and could create sorely needed employment for their stewards, while providing great benefits to local and visitor users alike.

Insert Written

The haiku stairs have been around since world war 2 and are an amazing piece of history! I believe they should be kept intact as they are something very amazing and iconic to the island of Oahu. Although many hikers choose to hike up them, I believe they should be fixed and maintained for all to enjoy!

There's countless projects out there to spend money on. Dont chose to spend money on removing stairs that have provided unparalled inspiration for people to see and fall in love with hawaii. The stairs are a privilege, a historical monument that now connects people with the island. Choose to regulate the traffic, choose to charge visitors maintenance fees, choose to make it sustainable, dont chose to remove it because its becoming a pain, the value far outweighs that!

Do not tear down the stairs! They are worth saving. I've never been able to do them myself but have known so many people who say it is the most extraordinary hike on this island. Put the effort into maintaining them so that they can be experienced by all! I'm sure you can come up with creative ways to fund this. It would be a great loss if they were torn down. Let the people have access to this glorious hike!

It's no secret that the Haiku Stairs are a bucket list item on thousands of people's lists, with some coming to Hawaii solely to make the adventure to the top. If safety is an issue, it makes monumentally more sense to make repairs than tear down the stairs. Thinking purely from an economic standpoint, if you put money into it now, it will pay for itself in a few years with all the tourism that it'll bring in.

I see the removal of the Haiku Stairs as a major setback for the state of Hawaii. Oahu I know for them around the world. If the state would make the hike public, maybe charge a park fee and continue invest into the stairs, it would be one of the safest hikes on the island. Hawaii has everything to offer... Beautiful Beaches, unforgettable hikes and plentiful Aloha! Don't make the wrong decision. Keep the stairs, close the back hike up the mountain, and put more smiles on peoples faces. Honest question... have you hiked the Haiku Stairs and experienced The Stairway to Heaven for yourself, or are you just looking at the hike from a piece of paper. Save the Haiku Stairs and keep putting smiles on people's faces. Much Aloha and Mahalo.

There aren't many stairs to heaven in this world. Please don't take down one of the ways. If they are need of repair please begin fundraising to make it safe. I believe it is a completely unnecessary action to remove the Haiku Stairs. A staircase that is taking a minimal amount of the mountain is not creating much of an environmental impact. Since it is already installed, people should have the right to enjoy the beauty the route has to offer. If environmental impact is an issue, there can be laws set in place to reduce the impact for example: large fines for littering, reduced amount of visitors allowed per given period with a down payment and reservation made in advance, even a bag check to ensure waste won't be brought up. If safety is a concern, make sure it is posted that hikers go at their own risk. If they feel they can handle it they should be free to the choice knowing the potential risks they can face.

The stairs mean so much to so many people. I think taking them down would do more harm than good. Sure, there are the safety issues, but I as a resident of Oahu though never having climbed them enjoy showing them to visitors as we drive along the H3 it's an impressive construction and it'd be a shame that they were destroyed just because some people choose to climb up them. It isn't everyone though many choose to go the long way around and just meet the stairs at the top for photos which I personally do not see a problem with. I hope as a community you decide to keep the stairs.

It's an important/classic/beautiful landscape of Oahu. I have made my biggest hiking of my life for to see the Haiku Stairs. I can't believe other people wouldn't have the chance to see this if you remove it... Please keep it. Mahalo. Allison (Canada)

With all do respect, these stairs should NOT be removed! They're history, they're a landmark, they're life changing! Shouldn't we be trying to preserve a beautiful landmark?! I understand the locals are upset within the neighborhood, however if the steps were controlled or open during certain hours.. we could prevent the "disturbance" (if it is truly that) This is an incredible hike, some people travel to Hawaii specifically for this! To remove the steps, should be equivalent to destroying the Great Wall of China, or any other of the most famous landmarks! Seems almost greedy to take this opportunity away from people! Please, please.. I beg, SAVE THE STAIRS!

This is a magical wonder that just needs to be properly maintained. There must be a way to monetize it to protect how many people can access, and also to limit the liability. It seems like a great revenue stream, not just from tourists but from locals as well. Perhaps it could become a destination experience the way Kalalau valley is on Kauai. People come from all over the world and buy permits 6 months in advance. At a time when tourism is likely to drop, it seems appropriate to maintain a treasure and create more access to it rather than removing it out of fear.

Having the stairs there isn't hurting anyone, but removing them would hurt so many.

The stairs are a part of history that needs to be preserved. Similar to the rich history at Pearl Harbor that allows for education and preservation, the same should be done with the stairs. Even if charging a fee is necessary to keep the stairs maintained, it would be important and detrimental for preserving history and education to those wanting to visit it. Similar to other sites, this could be used as revenue to balance the cost of upkeep.

Hawaii's hikes are a staple part of its beauty. Not only adorn & loved by the locals but a huge reason tourist come to the island. The Haiku stairs hike is one of our most impressive & most astonishingly beautiful trails. To see the island from the view of actual heaven is truly breathtaking. To take away something that brings so much life to the island is not only a mistake, but it's disheartening. We should be moving towards supporting & making all Hawai'i hikes better to improve the safety & livelihood of them. Please don't take a piece of our island away for selfish reasons. The people of Hawaii will thank you.

I believe that enforcing a permit to hike the haiku stairs and having tourists pay would be much better than removing them all together. I'm from New Zealand and have family that live in Kahala so am in Hawaii often so I know how much this hike means to locals and tourists such as myself. Last December I hiked the Moanaloa trail to the top to be able to see the stairs for myself, it was worth every minute of the 8 hour hike and bruised feet. However I would have paid any amount of money to hike the stairs legally with a guide, knowing that my money was going into the preservation of the stairs and the conservation of the land it rests on. I believe it would be a shame to remove the stairs all together without trying something as suggested above first. With people being allowed access to the stairs it would decrease the amount of visitors to the neighbourhood in the early hours of the morning as they wouldn't be trying to get in before the guard arrived or could see them with the light of day. I believe having controlled access will benefit the safety of hikers as well as the neighbouring streets as there will be little to no foot traffic from people trying to sneak in. This idea is one that has been shared by many locals who are fighting to preserve the stairs, many of whom climb the stairs regularly and know the sensation of looking down upon the amazing view. It makes me sad to think that others may miss out on this experience because a decision was made too soon to get rid of the stairs all together. Please consider a mitigation plan first, a trial for the ideas people are bringing to your attention. Another meeting can always be held to re evaluate the removal of the stairs at a later date if none of the mitigation plans work. However once the stairs are torn down there is no going back. Thank you for your time.

It's a piece of history that should remain and continue to be repurposed—to see Hawaii from a rare view while stepping back in time to learn a little bit about Hawaii's history. If it's considered a liability then post signs of warning, or make it some sort of state park, creating jobs for locals and have visitors sign a waiver. It's beauty from the top is undeniable, don't take that away from the nature lovers.

These stairs not only represent history, but also bring interest to the state and area. People will continue to climb the back way to access the top, eroding the terrain. The stairs would be so much safer, especially if repairs were made to the damaged areas.

I oppose the removal of these stairs. These stairs have been a decade long aspiration of mine. I realize that they are not legally open for hiking but so so many people have already gone through. I think if they are removed the hiking path with still be there but more dangerous then the current state. People will still go... I vote that the state permits people for the use of the trail. People would pay to legally hike this summit.

I visited Hawaii in September 2018 all the way from Britain. One of the main reasons I wanted to come to Hawaii was for these stairs. I have seen so many beautiful pictures and there is nowhere else in the world with something like this. It would be a crime to tear them down. I am certain you would lose out on so many tourists too.

The Haiku stairs are a precious landmark that should be respected and protected. I have been wishing since ages to visit this place, it was 8 years back I saw of picture of Haiku trail and fell in love with it. I am from India, who wants to visit this trail and hike it all the way. If it was to be removed, this will put a dent in one of my dream and I am pretty much sure that I am not alone with this dream! Place do not remove the stairs, instead repair it, it will eventually boost the tourism once this pandemic is over! With love from India

The stair are part of history, there is no reason to remove them. The stairs should be repaired and open to the public. People would pay money to the state of Hawaii, if they were allowed to climb the stairs. If the stairs are made safe, there wouldn't be a reason to remove them.

The Haiku stairs, is an unprecedented feat of engineering the likes of which will never be seen again. It is something that those who are able should experience. It is a symbol of the lengths our people went to ensure victory and safety in the Pacific. The old submarine tracking station should be made into a museum, and the parking lot paved. If a private contractor would come in, they could make it by reservation only. There would be so many permits to hike the stairs within a certain time period, with liability waivers that would be signed by each individual that wants to hike it. The fees for access to the trail would be used to maintain it, and any sort of museum or parking fees could be used for the same. As an attorney in Honolulu I would be happy to volunteer my services to draft liability waivers even if the state chose to keep it as a hiking trail. The waivers would indicate that the person wishing to hike is in good enough health to do so, and in the event of having to be rescued will pay all costs associated with said rescue. Hiking age would be for those 21 years or over. Right now the Federal government manages Haleakalā National Park using reservations to watch the sunrise to prevent overcrowding. I think reservations would be a way to come to a happy compromise between the residents in the area and those who wish to hike. Another idea is to let the Sierra Club, or other such group, take over and manage it. Please don't let this valuable piece of history be taken down, It was there before the residents in the area, and should remain there as a testament to the human spirit.

I met the Haiku Stairs in 2017 when I first found the gate that blocked the access to the stairs. It become an obsession. It has been more and more unforgettable and mystical. There, everyone find the sense of Life and can't stop thinking about it. It's the place where the Beauty join deeply the Wisdom of the ancients. Ecstasy, Beauty, Mysticism, Perfection! When you go up you notice that it's more than a hike, that it's not only the meaning of life, but that, slowly, the world you know goes away. There, without fears or doubts you can find yourself and the Love for Life. PLEASE SAVE THE STAIRS and their soul!

I just recently started traveling around the world and came across the Haiku Stairs. I had never even heard of them until my friend told me about them. I was in Hawaii for the very first time last year and we had driven past the Haiku Stairs on the freeway. It was so phenomenal looking. I have never seen anything like it. The stairs are incredible looking from a distance. Ever since then, I have been fascinated by the stairs and hoped that one day I could climb the stairs. I know at this time, they are illegal to climb. I hope it becomes legal one day. But these stairs are historical. And so many people come to look at them. I hope they will stay where they are for years to come.

"Privatize it. Issue a 50 year lease, require lessor to invest $1MM in improvements (restroom and parking facilities) and repair, allow lessor to collect (an) entrance fee and subsidize $125,000 a year (half of cost of security). Pretty sure you'll have a bunch of takers and it'll become one of Hawaii's most visited attraction." Privatize or put it in the hands of a the rightful hands of the Parks & Recreation Dept. Anything 80years in the making has to be viewed with historical, cultural vision toward maintaining/improving. At this point life in the area has adapted to the stairway's existence. Set up some environmental requirements, coordinate with the local interests, policing/emergency medical services/ecurity, all stakeholders so the city, state can avoid letting it fall into disrepair. Some well run, and seasonally timed fundraising events would assist the annual stair operating/maintenance budget. I would like to hike these someday myself.

The haiku stairs are a historic and beautiful treasure of Hawaii. The stairs provide a safer route to hike the mountain than the "legal" route that lack stairs, and also helps prevent the erosion of Hawaii's beauty. Please consider regulating the stairs so that more can experience their beauty, and so revenue can be generated for the preservation of the remarkable Haiku Valley. The stairs changed my life in a way I never expected - by showing me the most breathtaking views I have ever seen in the world.

This staircase is of utmost importance to Hawaii's international allure and local economy. The staircase is not only historic and a national treasure, it is a spiritual treasure. I think it would be a shame to remove the stairs. I have not yet experienced the climb myself; however, the pictures I've seen gives me the feeling that it has given people such a sense of accomplishment when they're able to see that they can climb them. And the feeling of such amazing Aw!! When they see the views!! I think it would makes me feel more connected to Mother Nature, to the islands, and have a deeper feeling of respect. So, please-please Do Not Remove the Haiku Stairs. Instead, charge a fee for maintenance and upkeep of the stairs. I would gladly pay a nominal fee. Mahalo for your consider!

So much history attached to this amazing mountain ! And the beautiful testimonies of people that traveled to the top on the those interior walls of the satellite structure is truly inspiring! We visited the island of Hawaii 1 1/2 years ago and this was one of the deciding factors for deciding this would be our vacation destination! We knew once we researched its history that this was something we must experience in our life time ! I've made numerous recommendations to friends and patients of mine that this a must see! Please don't take that opportunity from so many that wish to experience one of what I think is one of Hawaii's most intriguing and captivating island attractions ! Hope you will consider allowing tourists to access safely !

The Haiku Stairs are not only a national treasure but a superb, astonishing, and safe hike. To remove this would be equivalent to removing the Arizona memorial. I plead with the BWS: This structure has not impacted your water collection business for the last 60 years, it won't for the next 60. Be heroes not zeros. Save the Haiku Stairs!

Preserving the stairs is essential. Having access to the beaches and mountains are important for the people of Hawaii. Instead of tearing the stairs down, I believe that the stairs should be RESTORED! This way people are able to safely access the stairs and experience the beauty of the mountains in Hawaii. Experiencing nature is essential to a healthy way of living.

The removal of the haiku stairs would represent a massive interference in the rich history of the island of Oahu. The story of the military island is prominent within the Pearl Harbor community, and the only historic landmark that may be prettier is in fact the haiku stairs. I have traveled the world and few places rival the view, the mystery, and topography of the stairs. A quick reference of social media will show the viral popularity of this landmark. This is a massive tourism opportunity. The sheer fact that so many have illegally trekked the stairs should in fact prove that they would support a financially viable opportunity. They could easily be self sustainable and safely monitored with a lottery system similar to Haleakala. Please preserve these beautiful stairs.

Some of the most spectacular hikes in the world have some danger associated with them. The Haiku Trail Hike is no exception. I'm feeling like more can be done with public and government funding to make it as safe as possible to climb. This should be deemed a historic landmark and thereby receive funding to help create a safe new access that is maybe outside a residential neighborhood. Please consider saving this, and making it a beautiful PUBLIC hiking trail.

I've only ever accessed the Haiku stairs from the back path, the legal way. With that said, the sense of wonder and beauty I was able to experience in the few short steps I took on the stairs was unmatched. It's truly one of the most beautiful hikes on Oahu. The repairs could easily happen thru crowdfunding. Please do not destroy this beautiful space.

I am a hiker but have never personally hiked the Stairs. I ask that you consider keeping the stairs for all my friends and hikers that want to enjoy the beauty and challenge of this special place. If there is a way to make it a little safer for all, and perhaps limit the number of people going up there at a time. I was born and raised here and it's important to me and future generations to keep this alive. Thanks for listening. Arlene Howard

I've gone to Hawaii 3 times. And only to hike these stairs. These stairs attract thousands of hikers from around the world every year. Not only will you be removing a Hawaiian Bucket List item for millions around the world, but you'll also be depriving Hawaii of its tourism revenue. My husband had a bad oilfield accident and broke his leg. His only dream is to be able to one day hike the haiku stairs. Please do not remove them.

I believe that the stairs are a beautiful part of the island and something that should be renovated instead of removed. If they are unsafe I believe they should be made safe again so that people may once again enjoy them. I feel people will still try and do the hike regardless and providing a safe way to do it seems more convenient than providing them with a less than safe way. I personally have done the hike before and it is one of the most beautiful experiences I've ever had in my life and feel that more people should be allowed to enjoy this beauty that Oahu has to offer.

I oppose the removal of the Haiku Stairs because of two mains reason: it is disrespectful to the history of the US Navy & Coast Guard and it would be irresponsible on behalf of the board, since it would greatly increase the risk of injury or death to the hikers that would still attempt to summit. With all of the controversy surrounding the stairs by locals frustrated with folks passing through their neighborhood, I would have thought the government would build onto the stairs and make it accessible even for a fee. Hiking is a love for the great outdoors, and something Hawaii is famous for. The "Stairway to Heaven" is a hike known and revered worldwide and part of the appeal of visiting Oahu. The once operating Naval transmitter is also a part of history, and although it may not be the main attraction, there would be a certain sadness to eliminating the stairs accessing the top. For the more determined and stubborn hikers of course, this would mean creating their own route where the stairs once sat, with death or serious injury almost inevitable on such an incline where rainfall has such a major impact. I don't believe in trespassing or being disrespectful, but I do believe in allowing the people to have access to this challenging, yet beautiful trek to the top. If the main concerns are safety and trespassing, I feel it is a better choice to fix the stairs and open the road leading to the bottom of them to the public, with an added fee and possible limit on hikers per day. I hope to see a positive change on this subject and thank you for allowing an open discussion and vote pertaining to it.

The Haiku Stairs are a keepsake to the island of Oahu, built during WWII which needless to say greatly impacted Oahu and Pearl Harbor. I understand the concern of hikers on this hike, but please understand how important the history is to this island. An estimate of 900,000 to remove the stairs is a huge price that could be spent else where. Why not put that money to renovate the stairs and open to the public? Make dedicated parking so residents do not get upset. And leave it up to the hiker if they are skilled enough. Again. Please do not demolish this precious keepsake to our island.

I believe the removal of the stairs would be a waste of money, instead of spending the money to take them down it should be used to repair the stairs and maintain them. The amount of resources it would take to remove the stairs should be put into other projects, for instance the roads, there's tons of pot holes near my house that should be repaired before some stairs are torn down. The tax payers money should be spent, not destroying something, but rather repairing what we already have or at least but back into the economy with everything that is now happening.

I greatly oppose the removal of these iconic stairs. I have personally witnessed life transformations in friends, family, and myself by climbing them. There's no other place in the world like it. We take so much from nature and the earth on a daily basis but these stairs should NOT be one of them. They allow humans to become in touch with the nature that surrounds them and we all need that experience in our lives and the lives of those after us.

The Haiku stairs show both the historic and beautiful side of Oahu. Removing them would be a removal of history. The only people who want the stairs removed are the homeowners at the bottom of the stairs. I understand their frustration when some people come stomping through their yard, but why not give the hikers a designated parking area away from the neighborhood? Keep the stairs!

As an avid hiker the Haiku Stairs are a must for any adventure thrill seaker!!! The views, the experience, the people you meet along the way makes this one of the most life changing hikes I have ever done. The views are otherworldly and the friends that I made doing this hike were life changing. To take this experience away from others would be a true travesty and an injustice to the people of Hawaii and the world!!! Please consider the good that outweighs the bad and consider how a simple trail and stairs has changed the lives of so many people!!! Thanks, Benjamin Roghair

Haiku stairs is one of the most incredible experiences that Oahu can offer. Locals and people from around the world climb the stairs safely to experience the aura and beauty of the Hawaiian mountains. If you tear them down people will continue to climb these mountains but traversing a very dangerous route. Do NOT tear down the Haiku stairs at the future expense of human lives.

I think the stairs should be left in place, i believe this because for many people its a memory and a wonder of the world. Its also more than just that, its a historical site that many people put in alot of hard work installing the stairs. I think it would greatly sadden people across the world if they were removed and a piece of Hawaii history would be gone.

I can remember sitting in class back in school searching through YouTube and coming across a video of someone climbing the stairs. I remember sitting there, mesmerized at how beautiful it looked on the screen and wondering how much more amazing it would be in person. It shot to the top of my bucket list and remained there for 7 years until my recent trip to Oahu. I had always imagined what it would be like but was not prepared for just how magical of an experience it truly was. The moment I saw the stairs for the first time, I can not describe the amount of excitement and emotions I felt. I had envisioned this moment hundreds of times over the years but to actually be standing there looking at them was an experience in itself. The hike up was fairly easygoing with frequent stops to admire the views that just never stopped improving. Finally, at the top, looking back out, my breath was taken away by the beauty of what had to have been god opening up and showing us a small glimpse of the heavens and what was the most beautiful view I've ever seen. 7 years I spent daydreaming of finally being able to do this treasure that's called the haiku stairs. It is and will more then likely remain the most amazing thing I've done and I don't believe it can be topped. For the few hours I was up on the top of that mountain I was at peace with the world and everything going on in my life. I could have never prepared for just how magical of an experience it truly is. Please don't deny another kid, that like I was, may be dreaming of the haiku stairs and climbing them one day. I know it would have crushed me to have never been able to.

Aloha, I highly oppose of taking down Haiku stairs. It is one of the most beautiful hikes in the world and a landmark of Oahu just like Na Pali coast is to Kauai. Despite the high elevation it is actually a much safer hike than many well known hikes on the Island because of the rugged non-slip stairs and high guardrails. I understand that the stairs need to be maintained, locals and tourists would be more than happy to hike them for a fee. Please do the right thing and keep the stairs.

I love the Haiku Stairs. I have come to Hawaii 3 times for the sole reason of hiking up to them. The view from the top of the mountain is one of the most beautiful views on the whole mountain. I strongly oppose the removal of the stairs. The stairs are one of the most popular items on any persons bucket list and are extremely popular on Instagram and all other social media platforms. If you were to remove the stairs you would be removing a huge piece of American history as well as a major tourist attraction.

Everyone is acting like it's so much more dangerous than any other hike on the island. There are many hikes much more dangerous that are completely open. But that's just it, it's the hikers' right on all of those hikes to accept the risk, not yours. Let's not even begin talking about the fact that it's even safer than so many climbs on mountains on the mainland. I understand it is your right to be cowardly and act like you can't handle people hiking it, but what if every government organization shut down anything that involves a little risk? Literally all action sports in any park across the country would be halted. Think about that. This is one (not that dangerous) of a hike in a world of far more dangerous adventure activities. Why choose to stop this one? Or if you do, don't stop there, let's just take away everyone's rights and continue to keep all parks closed like during the quarantine right? I sure would hate to see someone over heat and tumble down koko head. Understand now? All this being said, I know there is a lot to this that us in the public don't understand it have to answer to and respect what you guys have to do. I just implore you to realize that with any hike, it is the hiker who assumes risk for their own well being. Mahalo

The removal of the Haiku Stairs would result in a whole plethora of problems. First, the only other way to the top of Pu'uukeahiakahoe is a dangerous trek called the Moanalua Valley Trail. Why would the BWS want to be responsible for removing the only safe way up the mountain? Whether the stairs are there or not people will always find a way up, I mean how could you not? I consider this one of the most sacred and beautiful spaces in the world. The main reason myself and my family came to Oahu was to witness and beauty that this sacred mountain has to offer. Why tare down something that if built up, and maintained could generate massive amounts of revenue for the state of Hawaii? I know people that have traveled to Oahu just to climb the Haiku Stairs. Not to mention the common misconception that the stairs are dangerous. There has only been one death reported on the Haiku Stairs and it was due to a heart attack, not the stairs. Actually due to the stairs being there, this makes the Haiku Stairs the safest ridge hike in Hawaii. There have been so many memories, so many stories, so many tears, so many relationships formed within the walls of the bunker that sits atop the Haiku Stairs. I fully believe the decision to remove these stairs will result in a massive loss of revenue for Hawaii, a loss of lives for attempting the dangerous alternate route, and a loss of historical significance. The stairs hold so much history, energy and stories. How could you disrupt something so important in this day and age? Before you make the decision to remove the Haiku Stairs, ask yourself this: would you remove Machu Picchu? Would you remove the Pyramids? Because the Stairway to Heaven is just as sacred, and just as important.

It's also called the stairway to heaven. For a Reason. It's an incredibly beautiful piece of architecture/history/nature. I will climb up this mountain whether the stairs are there or not sometime in my lifetime since this is free world for everyone to enjoy all of its natural beauty. I understand your reasoning for wanting to remove the stairs, but think of the money and resources it will take to do so. Also, think of the impact the removal of the stairs will have on the traffic on the trail whether the stairs are there or not, and the safety factor related to the stairs remaining or being removed. Many will continue to climb up the mountain whether the stairs are there or not. Yes, the stairs are a historical feature which does add to this locations interest level, and likely draw in more tourist to climb them, but is the safety of those who will continue to climb this trail greater with the stairs there or without? That is for you to decide, but either way people will continue to use this trail and so will I one day.

To the powers that be, My name is Brian Duaqui, a Canadian citizen that has traveled to Hawaii last year with my girlfriend to hike the Haiku stairs the illegal way. From countless stories, videos and testimonies from both parties that have done the legal & illegally way, we made our decision to go with the safest routes possible. We made it to the top safe and sound and enjoyed the gorgeous view of Hawaii. On our ascend and descend we made sure not to make too much noise, nor pollute our surroundings as we are simply visitors paying respects to your country and state by respecting the environment. We urge you not to tear down the stairs. It is a historic masterpiece that can be rebuilt more safely if you wish by placing a fee to hike it up. Las Vegas does the same thing with their hotels charging resort fees as an upkeep. As a Canadian, we truly love and respect Hawaii. Thank you for taking the time to read this. Brian Duaqui

I do NOT support removal of stairs. Not only is the hike "safe" compared to legal way (that trail is insanely scary and proven DEADLY year in, year out, UNLIKE the Haiku Stairs. It is also a life changing experience like nothing found in the WORLD. Yes ive hiked it, helped volunteer doing repairs on the stairs, and will NEVER FORGET A MOMENT OF IT.

My first trip to Hawaii was last December but unfortunately i wasn't able to make it to Oahu. I was quite impressed of how respectful of nature the native Hawaiians are and how they are able to have that sentiment flow through to the tourists. I believe by exploring different options, it will be possible to ensure the safety of the stairs and allow people to still take on the personal challenge of the climb to experience the beauty and personal healing journey. Perhaps, only allow access with experienced certified guides. Charge a fee for entrance to help pay for the maintenance, etc. i was partially paralyzed 20 yrs ago and it has been a personal goal of mine to climb the stairs experience the beauty from the top first hand. It will truly be a journey of self healing.

One of the most incredible hikes to do on Oahu is the Stairway to Heaven. The views, the experience, the effort it takes, nothing compares. Removing the Haiku stairs would be detrimental to the island. For many years people have come here with the intention of doing this hike and they will for years to come. If we are worried about safety, it's time to repair them not take them down. Please please please keep these amazing stairs.

The Haiku Stairs are the most magnificent representation of the beauty of Oahu. The views, the scenery and the experience are incredible and it would be ashamed to take them down. Maybe make some safety fixes and keep them? Maybe charge for people to go or sign a waiver or anything that would keep them.

Destroying the stairs would be a huge loss of an irreplaceable recreational, educational, historic and cultural resource. We do not want to lose this piece of heritage or dismiss the value it holds, as if it is just another disposable piece of trash. The nearly $1 million spent to tear it down could be better allocated and dispersed to the residents who need it more.

Please do not remove them, they are a huge part in why a lot of people visit Hawaii - to hike and see them to take in the beautiful views. Why not rebuild them to make them safer and more accessible and turn it into another state park that could bring in money towards the island like diamond head.

The haiku stairs have been illegal to hike as long as I have known about them. I have lived in Hawaii multiple times and have had opportunities to hike the stairs, but I never have because I don't want to break the law. I am an avid hiker currently living in the state of Utah, and it has been my dream to climb the haiku stairs for as long as I can remember. I believe that if there is public access provided to the hikers, the excitement that many feel by breaking the law will go away and the less serious hikers will not get stuck on the mountains and require rescue, since they won't be doing this hike in the middle of the night. Additionally, if the public is limited and made to pay money to do the hike, there will be funding to maintain the trail and pay the security/gatekeeper's fees. This could go from being a money pit to a source of revenue for the community. I really hope you will consider these ideas, as the haiku stairs are a historic landmark and people travel from all over the world to see them. Thank you for your consideration.

The Haiku Stairs is one of the safest hikes on the island of Oahu. With the steel staircase and hand rails, this ridge summit has only had 1 death I believe in the past 50 years? I feel the main issue is for the neighborhoods that people go through to get to the base of the stairs. This issue can be resolved, as shown by the Friends of Haiku Stairs and their proposal. I beg you, these stairs bring so much joy to those who have climbed them. They truly change lives and give a new perspective to those after coming down. I believe this could be a huge attraction that would bring revenue to Hawaii if kept and made legal. If safety is your main reason for taking it down, you aren't looking at the facts. Please keep the stairs and preserve Oahu's history.

The stairs are an impactful reminder of history and why/ how they were built makes an amazing story. They also show off the most beautiful view of our entire island. I definitely feel the investment to preserve them would be worth it. And if they were torn down, most of the island's population would become upset.

I personally have never visited the Haiku stairs, but when I see them, to me, they are representative of Hawaii, its beauty, and the opportunity we all have to experience that. Run it similar to Diamond Head with limitations: Small parking lot. Charge a fee. Minimum age requirement. "At own risk" legal signage, agreement to possibility of paying rescue costs or signed paperwork agreement with a harness rental. One way route (loop) if possible. Create safety system with harness/double clip-in required on stairs (fee includes harness rental and person to give instructions and fitment at rental). Sell the heck out of "I hiked..." shirts/hats, etc. at end. *Fee should be high enough to fund the cost of harness, maintenance, etc. but also low enough so it is still affordable to the general local population. I believe it is a great opportunity that can be utilized responsibly and be an asset to the island of Oahu.

The Haiku Stairs are not only historical, but also a one-of-a-kind hike that offers an experience like no other. Though I completely understand the concerns regarding safety, I believe an investment toward implementing precautionary measures will be well worth it. Requiring waivers or entry fees will not turn people away from their curiosity and passion to climb the stairs.

I have never seen the stairs in person, but for years I have seen photos and videos documenting the beautiful experience of ascending them. Photographers, bloggers, and travelers have adventures to climb these stairs for year and since I was a teenager, I've dreamed of doing the same. This has been a fixed point on my bucket list that I slowly creep towards crossing. This is truly a landmark known and appreciated far and wide. I hope to someday soon come to climb then for myself.

It is a beautiful landmark that adds to the culture of the island. There are safety risks for hikers who do end up slipping through the security, but no harm has been done to anyone. Not many hikers go on this trail because it is illegal, so there is already a reduction in the number of visitors. I've even gone to Maui to hike and avoided the stairs, but it is still a beautiful sight to see.

The Haiku Stairs is one of the biggest attractions on Oahu known to locals and international guests alike. With the appropriate management regarding maintenance and limited access, preserving this historical site would attract current and future generations to explore the beauty of Oahu's landscape. The removal of the Haiku stairs would be a deeply felt loss for the historical and cultural integrity of Oahu.

Oppose the removal please, Hiking not only allows so many of us to a part of something huge, esp the Ha'ikū Stairs, but allows so much emotion, in the experience itself... spiritual & fear conquering, it is a place that is truly a gift and holds so many different experiences or memories for so many people across the world. A connection that is so difficult to put into words. Im hoping if you have ever experienced the Ha'ikū Stairs or even for a moment if you could consider it as a representation of something that is close to your heart; you will understand and preserve for future generations and the connection it brings to so many.

I disagree with removing the stairs! It is such an amazing and historical staple of Hawaii that removing them will on increase controversy and disappointment. I saw the stairs for the first time when I was young on social media and always told myself I'd one day get to see them. Last year (13 years later) I finally got to see them and I was completely amazed at how beautiful and historical they are. Removal will be like removing a crutch of Hawaiian history.

Any historical landmark, particularly one that encourages wellness through exercise should never be removed. Allow people to climb the trails on the back side of the mountain to the top where the radio tower is and enjoy the splendid scenery and marvel at the creation. It would be sad to have them removed.

Do Not remove the Haiku Stairs. This hike allows visitors and residents a place to bond, forge relationships with other adventurers and connect with the land of Hawaii. I have witnessed physical and psychological breakthroughs on the journey to the Haiku stairs. Removing the stairs is permanently removing a piece of history that can not be experienced in any other capacity; a disservice to the land and people. Our Ohana take pride in having such a beautiful place to share with the world.

Please don't tear it down. It has so much history and its and Island culture for all the locals. It beautifies this Island. I just think that it's going to be a waste of taxpayers hard earned money to remove these stairs. The stairs have been there so long that they have blended into the landscape. It's a landmark full of lore, beauty, and history. The fact that anybody is even wasting their time on this is absurd. They'll remove the stairs only to put a telescope or some other modern monstrosity later.

When I arrived in Hawaii to be stationed there for the navy I was adventurous and wanted to see what Hawaii had to offer. A group a friends told me about this hike and asked if I wanted to join. So I went. By far the best hike I have ever been on. Yea it needs some repairs, but what doesn't need repairs. This hike has it limitations just like every hike out there. But its one of the best hikes around. Not only for it's view but for it's challenge. It would hurt to see this disappear and no one else would get to enjoy to satisfaction of completing this. It would be more benefial as a public hike than nothing. Do the repairs that are needed and it can add to the wonder and excitement hawaii always has.

I would like to submit testimony to the Board of Water Supply Board of Directors regarding Haiku Stairs. My testimony is below or attached. Please don't remove these stairs. There is an opportunity to save millions by just repairing the damaged stairs and not have to pay for a guard to watch over them. You might even make money if you charged a fee to hike them. This is such a draw for people. I am one of them and I've yet to hike them because it's illegal. It is a dream of mine to one day hike that beautiful mountain, up those stairs Thank you -Cody Fullmer

The stairs are an important part of the history of Hawaii. Would Rome tear down the Coliseum because people were sneaking in? If it needs regulation, let's push for that, not destroying history. In addition, in a time when tourism is going to struggle post-covid-19, we need to preserve those aspects of Hawaii that draw people here.

The Haiku stairs are iconic and have become part of the Oahu landscape. Removing them would cause significant environmental damage through extended earthworks and use of machinery, which would cause more environmental harm than leaving the stairs in situ. Secondly, removing such an iconic Oahu feature will add further damage to the tourism economy - a sector already under intense stress from the Covid-19 pandemic. Many tourists travel to visit these stairs (many do this without trespassing or climbing the stairs themselves), and some small businesses - businesses most severely impacted by the Covid-19 economic downturn - make a living from running safe, low impact walking tours to see these stairs. Removing them would kill these businesses and take away another reason for tourists to visit Oahu post Covid-19 at support the local economy

The haiku stairs have been one of my top must do hikes. I was actually planning on coming to Hawaii after finishing my first travel contract. Then the pandemic hit...but I still full well intend on fulfilling that promise to myself. Losing that path would be a loss to the local community and admirers from far. It would be such a devastating loss to see the Haiku Stairs removed. I urge anyone in favor of removal of the stairs, to first hike the stairs to immerse yourself in what I personally believe to be a life changing experience. The reason you would do this is to put yourselves in The shoes of the thousands of people that have fallen in love with what the Haiku Stairs has to offer and to feel how it has touched these people. When I first learned about the stairs I b was mesmerized at the history, I was impressed at how these men and woman utilized this in their daily life and I HAD to learn more about how some of our fellow humans benefitted and utilized the stairs. Finally, in 2018 I had the most unique experience in my life after traveling to Oahu from Cleveland, Ohio. After temporarily leaving the busy life as a Clevelander, Haiku stairs changed my life, it allowed me to immerse myself within nature and American history at the same time which I believe in the combination together is EXTREMELY RARE to find. It takes so much character, drive, and determination to make the climb and you learn so much about yourself while enjoying the beauty that particular part of Oahu has to offer. I feel as if it is a healing, rejuvenating, wholesome experience that truly showed me the importance of nature and how it can affect us as humans. It allowed me to come back to Cleveland and look at stress and life in a different light and how needed experiences like this are. I honestly can say I have become a more positive person & also more efficiently in my daily life, however if you asked me how that is possible, my response would leave me speechless. But I can say that I know and feel that change within my heart. That is where the life changing experience has come into play for me. I see utilizing the stairs to be a great opportunity to bring some jobs to locals, and also increase revenue on that side of Oahu. Where else can Oahu grow without affecting or harming the existing land. This also gets humans away from digital devices, it pushes humans to dig deep and be active, preventing inactivity and a sedentary lifestyle which kills millions of people a year. This experience encouraged me to become more active and fit which is critical in human well being.. Please utilize that amazing piece of artwork and American history! Save the Haiku Stairs! Capitalize on the opportunity the Haiku Stairs has to offer!! Thank you for taking the time to read my Testimony.

I'm speaking on behalf of my self my family of 3 and my youth group who traveled to Hawaii and got to enjoy the amazing things the island offered one of which was the Haiku Stairs. If anything should happen to these stairs it should be to repair them and to make the stairs safer at all cost so people can safely enjoy them. I understand the stairs have been closed now for a few years but when I went as a kid and as a youth student I was able to climb the difficult hike because I was determined. It was the highlight of both my trips and I can't imagine what it would be like with out them. I know it's one of the things that instantly comes to mind when I here Hawaii and I imagine that when ever I come back I will climb the stars again just for the pleasure of it because the stairs are apart of Hawaii and if they are removed then a part of the island is changed forever

Please DO NOT remove the Haiku Stairs. Everytime my family and I visit, we make it a point to capture the breathtaking views along the way. My mother took me on this hike so many years ago and on this hike, I fell in love with the land. This is not only a hike, but also an experience. An experience that has stuck with me for over 10+ years. Removal of the Haiku Stairs will be detrimental to those who wish to fall in love with the land every visit.

Hello, my name is Daniel and I moved to Hawaii over 5 years ago. I never really hiked until I moved to Hawaii and became obsessed with the mountains and landscape all around when doing different hikes. I had never heard about the Haiku Stairs until my friend showed me a picture of the stairs and the beautiful nature that you see all around when getting to the top. When I finally got around to do the hike I went through Moanalua Valley and got to the very top of the Haiku Stairs and that's when I realized that this place was a very special place that was built for other reasons than for hikers but I just felt like it was placed there for us to enjoy in the coming years as did visitors in the past. Walking down the stairs to get a glimpse of the other side of the ridge I began to realize why people love to do this hike and then energy that I felt as the wind blew through me it brought this excitement and happiness that I had never felt before. Once I was done doing the hike I truly appreciated the beauty of Hawaii and was really grateful that I got to visit the stairs and take amazing pictures like I had seen before. I'm definitely towards keeping the stairs and letting future generations enjoy what I experienced when climbing the stairs, obviously a solution has to happen where the neighbors and hikers can coexist without no disagreements and cops being evolved. I know this will be a big challenge to overcome but I know that we can all work this out in the end and we can all truly enjoy the beauty that is the island of Oahu, even if it's from the top of the stairs or from the bottom where neighbors have chosen to invest in a home.

The Haiku Stairs and surrounding area have so much history. Not to mention the surrounding natural beauty. Please consider fixing the stairs to maintain safety regulations, and leaving them for the public to use. It can be a great form of exercise as well as a breathtaking view of nature and way to connect. Don't tear down history. Keep it alive!

Please do not remove this iconic mark on the island of Oahu. I understand the concerns for safety and for the residents that are lucky enough to live on such a majestic piece of the island. We we were to raise funds to make repairs to the stairs, have access from the road (not through backyards), have limited numbers of who could be up at one time, volunteers to work the "entrance" and regulate the number going up. Volunteers would take care of this landmark because it means that much to our island. At least give us the opportunity to make it into a nonprofit organization. A trial run of 3-5 years. After that timeframe, if we have not made residents happier, made the stairs safer, ascent/descent safer, then we could agree to the closure.

The stairway to heaven is such an amazing experience and it would be devastating to have it torn down. The stairs are safe there's only a small section that needs minor repair. To prevent the future generations from this experience would be cruel and the haiku stairs is a hike that people travel all over the world to experience. Not only does this bring in revenue for Oahu but it also should be preserved because it is a huge part of Oahu's history. I believe the stairs should be preserved and repaired for generations to come.

The Haiku Stairs are part of Hawaii's history along with the world's history dating from WWII. It's preservation is valuable to the people of Hawaii and those battling war in WWII. It is a historical symbol and a constant reminder of the sacrifices that were made. Today, Haiku Stairs are among the top gems and wonders of this world and many people, not only those living in Hawaii would want to preserve these historical symbols of life that so many people have sacrificed their lives for. Taking it down would destroy people's hopes, dreams, and remove all its significance in history of war. Preserve the stairs! Preserve its history! Remember those who were part of this history!

The Haiku stairs were originally stilled to aid the US Naval Base during the critical time of WWII. Though the base is no longer in operation, the stairs represent the great adversity that Hawaii was able to overcome after the horrific events of Pearl Harbor. Hawaii and America picked themselves up by their bootstraps and showed what it truly means to be American. Don't allow this essential piece of Hawaii's history and WWII history to be torn down!

I live in Toronto Canada and have visited Oahu twice. On my second trip to Oahu I planned and went on many hikes. In my planning I learned of the Haiku stairs and that was on the top of my list of hikes to do. However, I respected the local laws and did not do the hike. I think the best way to control access to and preserve the area surrounding the Haiku stairs would be to implement a system that allows a small number of reservations for hikers to do the hike at their risk. A fee could be imposed for non-residents to pay for some minimal maintenance and administration. Educating people at the time of booking will create a culture of respect on the stairs and create social pressure for self enforcement. Removing the stairs out right will just make the hike more dangerous for the people who will do the hike regardless and will cause people to work together against the authorities to gain access.

I highly oppose the removal of the Haiku stairs. I have climbed many times, at times when I felt like I was lonely, depressed, or even just to get away from the rest of the world. They have helped me in such a way that no other experience has given in with breath-taking views and energy to focus on the climb and forget the rest of the world. It has been the case for me and countless other people. Thank you, David M.

The Haiku Stairs has caused in inconvenience to residents of the Castle Hills & Hokulele communities. Everyday as early at 4am, residents have to deal with hikers illegally parking, blocking driveways using their outdoor faucets, littering on personal properties or trespassing in order to access the trail. It seems every weekend HFD helicopters & rescue team are seen rescuing stranded hikers proving the trail provides a risk to hikers & the rescue team. As previously discussed at community meeting no entities (BOWS, DOTH, HHL, OHA, KSBE) wants the responsibility of maintaining the stairs or be held responsible for injuries or fatalities. The stairs was not built to support thousands of hikers daily. The BOWS is not in business to support the stairs. The option to remove the stairs and turn over to Kualoa Ranch is a win-win solution for all. Mahalo for considering my testimony to remove the stairs.

I have visited those stairs twice with my daughter in the last 3 years. Though I lived in Kaimuki for 2 years in the 80s, I never had a chance to climb. Both times my daughter and I went, we were unable to reach the summit, and both times we couldn't stop talking about our experiences. I am familiar with most of the geography of the island, and the "Stairway to Heaven" is, without any doubt, our favorite place on Oahu. Please vote to keep the stairs just as they are- a treasure!

To the Board of Water Supply I am sending in this written testimony opposing the removal of Haiku Stairs. I hope in doing so the board will consider the alternative in the restoration and the managed access of the Stairs. Preservation for not only a historical site, but even more importantly, the ecological surrounding of the Stairs. I come from NZ, a place that is well aware of both maintaining and preserving the integrity of such sites, while simultaneously understanding and managing the tourism that comes to such locations. Education is key in creating the respect needed to maintain a type of managed access system. The awe, wonder, historical inquisitive nature of people from all around the world to set eyes upon the Stairs, would be a devastating light to blow out. Many around the world hope for you to consider otherwise, please do. In making your decision, I hope you do so with aroha. Thank your for your time, Deevya Singh Aloha, My time living on Oahu was relatively short; however, one of the best experiences of my life has been climbing the Haiku Stairs. As a believer, I remember sitting at the top above the clouds just praying for the world, our country and the state of Hawaii. I remember being still in awe and as I sit here typing, I cry because I wish I could have just another 5 minutes in that same place feeling the same feelings I experienced so many years ago. I really hate to think that one of the most amazing places on earth would need to go away due to bureaucracy, I also believe that there are enough people who would likely support (by fund and deed) the resources needed to ensure the Haiku Stairs continue on well into the future. This is a piece of Hawaii's vibrant history of which we should not accept the removal. Please, feel free to contact me for any clarification and/or future support for Haiku Stairs.

The stairs should not be removed as they are a truly remarkable thing that Hawai'i has. The stairs offer so much that is overlooked in today's mindset. Before the shutdown they offered once in a lifetime sight seeing of the island and was a major tourist attraction. If anything it would be beneficial to repair the stairs for the people to enjoy. Removing them would be a slap in the face to everyone who loves Hawai'i.

With a one of a kind view, the Haiku Stairs have been sought for and admired by many travelers and nature lovers. To take a historical structure down would be a travesty. Instead I urge you all to consider the alternative: monetize the site by requiring certified tour guides to bring any thrill-seekers to the safest part of the sight. Not only would this provide an income to the travel guides who enrich tourists and travelers through Hawaii's history and beauty, this would ensure that there is protection for the stairs and for the visitors. Rather than taking down something beautiful and one of a kind, please reflect on the wondrous opportunities that you all have on your lap.

I've done the stairs with my wife on our honeymoon. It was an unbelievable experience and they should be preserved as a cultural good of the Islands of Hawaii. There is so much history tied to these constructions. Put them under an age control and repair them based on public donations. People will pay and the stairs need to be safed. It is worth it.

Hello, I'm writing as citizen of EU, I'm from Czech Republic. I just want to say that seeing of Haiku Stairs was the main reason why me and my girlfriend went to Hawaii in December 2008. I was 26 at that time and Seeing the Haiku Stairs was my dream since I saw them on the photo at High School. From the middle of the Europe, it's really far and I didn't event think it will be possible for me to see them. But I was lucky, I built up my career and saved enough money to bring there also my girlfriend. I can say that it was most intense momenth in our lives. We hike there from Moanalua Valley (legal trail) and we sit on the top of the mountain whole day just staring at them. It was wonderful experience. What I eqnt to say is that Haiku Stairs are really nice place to visit and when I show our pictures from there to my colleagues, friends and even family, I "created" new tourists who wants to go there and spend their money at Hawaii (and believe me, there is not a lot people in Europe who travelling there). We were respectful, we did not sneak through the forest and tool illegal way. We just went there from the valley and didn't even walk on the stairs. I hope you will decide to save the stairs. Not just for me, but world should not lose place like this. Thank you and stay safe.

I am a partial resident on the island of Oahu. My dad lives there so I am there monthly I have always wanted to do this hike but my dad has never let me because of the fine. I've seen thousands of pictures and the view is amazing it is something that should be turned into a must do hike. But that would require heavy repair. I think it would be worth it and the BWS could charge a ten dollar fee or ask for donations to be able to repair the stairs.

I oppose removal of the Haiku Stairs! It has so much history it would break so many hearts mine included. I found the legal route to the top, probably one of my favorite places ever. I plan on returning in that future! It brings so much tourism. Maybe charging entry and regulating how many people are allowed there at a time. But please don't tear it down :(

The haiku stairs should not be removed! Instead they can be turned into an official hiking trail for the public. Make it similar to diamondhead in that it needs an entrance fee to help maintain the stairs and to help gain money for the island by selling merchandise related to it. This can be turned into a safe hike for those who want to participate and a way of gaining money for the island and it's people living there. It's a win-win situation. Please don't tear down the stairs! They are something beautiful and worth saving!!

The stairs should be repaired and put to use for the benefit of community. Use of them is a privilege and should be capable of being a financially self-sustaining endeavor. Charge and APPROPRIATE fee for their use and ensure the proceeds go the upkeep and improvement of the stairs. There will be initial start up costs but it is highly likely that those costs will be recovered. The danger then becomes preventing the politicizing and raiding of proceeds generated by the stairs as well as the standard corrupt management practices generally in place in Hawaii government.

The destruction of the Haiku stars is a grave mistake. It is a wonderful and absolutely gorgeous experience that people may never get to experience if they are destroyed. It is a chance to come closer with mother nature and experience her true beauty while moving your body and staying fit. The stairs do not harm anything, and bring joy to countless amounts of people. Why take that away? By removing the stairs you be causing more harm than fixing. It would be a terrible and unfortunate mistake to destroy many people's favorite part of Hawaii. Please do not destroy this beautiful part of the world.

Please do not remove this beautiful way to explore Hawai'i's mana. The utilization of the stairs in an organized and systematic way can bring money into the state, allow the people to enjoy the natural wonders of the East Side and do so in a safe way. Hiking outside in nature always has its risks, no matter where you live or what hike you are on. Closing and making this hike illegal has led to hikers leaving in the dark and increasing the danger. Please find a way to make these stairs a legal hike in Hawai'i and dont take away our ability to experience its mana.

The Haiku stairs are a part of history on Oahu. Taking the stairs down would be taking down a part of that history. A possible solution is to have people apply for a permit to hike the stairs, only allowing so many to do so each day. Participants would also sign a liability waiver knowing the risks associated with climbing the stairs. I would love to see the stairs restored or permits and safety waivers be put in place so that residents and visitors of Oahu can hike and enjoy the stairs And the incredible views for years to come.

We visited Oahu on our honeymoon last July and we had a chance to hike the Ridge trail. It was one of the most beautiful and exhilarating hikes I've ever done. Reaching the top and descending into the stairs was something I had always wanted to do. I believe the stairs should remain intact and repaired for future climbers to enjoy. Charging a fee to climb would help pay for updates and I'm sure participants would be willing to pay.

Removing the stairs is like removing one of the world's great wonders. They are worth the time and money to maintain—these stairs and the experience they provide are absolutely priceless. Many people call the haiku stairs the best hike of their lives and it is a spiritual journey for many. Removing it because it doesn't work with your mission is short sighted and doesn't consider their importance outside of your small scope. These stairs are a world treasure. Please find a way to save them. They are invaluable.

I am opposed to taking down the stairs as they have become a huge part of my life that I will never forget. There are many ways that the stairs can still remain without causing disruption in the community. Please understand that taking these stairs down will do more harm than allowing it to remain on the mountain. Hikers will continue to hike the mountain regardless of whether you take the stairs down.

I am an avid trail runner and joker here on Oahu. I hike all over this island and go up to the ridge line various ways. The Haiku Stairs is an amazingly unique feature of Oahu. It is both breathtakingly beautiful and challenging to ascend. I support keeping and maintaining the stairs for current and future generations to behold. Once lost, its often difficult or impossible to get something like this back. I also understand there are monetary, legal, and social considerations to the argument. Those can be figured out. Please keep this Hawaiian Wonder around.

Stairway to heaven is a legendary location with special significance to me and my friends. It represents aspirations towards physical strength and aesthetic value, in the way the stairs cut through the clouds and reach incredible heights. I've always wanted to climb these legendary stairs, to prove to myself that I can do it and to show the world how beautiful they are. If you tear them down you'd be tearing down my dream and it would never be fulfilled.

The Haiku Stairs are of utmost importance to many locals and tourists of hawaii. I personally started my journey with Hawaii and it's beautiful culture in 2017. That experience changed my life significantly from the way I view myself, others and the world. I returned in 2019 to Honolulu and climbed the stairs with a group of people who I had never met, but soon became close with while on the transformative journey up the stairs. There is something that happens to a person up on that mountain that is unlike anything else. The experience of confidence and overwhelming gratitude for being so close to the land and experiencing what so many others have experienced before is truly inspiring and life changing. Sharing our stories and our lives with each other is something that cannot be replicated anywhere else. There is so much love and compassion up on that mountain for all living things that it changes the perspective of each and every person that gets the amazing opportunity to experience it. We all wish the stairs to stay where they are, to not only protect the integrity of the mountain from footsteps, but to welcome local hawaiians and travellers from near and far to experience what aloha really feels like. There are ways to ensure the communities surrounding the base of the stairs are respected, while keeping the stairs open. Please consider these other options.

As a visitor to Oahu, I knew immediately that the 9+ mile out and back hike to the Haiku Stairs was going to be the highlight of my trip. Though I don't live on the island, I know how important this place is for those in the area who love to explore, but also how important it is to me as I made my way up to the summit of this hike. There is nothing quite like it in all of the places I've ever been! It would be a shame to see these stairs destroyed as they gave me one of the best views after one of the best hikes I've ever done. I hope you consider that the stairs are more than just stairs, but a place that allows explorers and visitors alike to find time to slow down and see the beauty of both nature and manmade existing together.

I recently moved here last year and reside in Makiki . I oppose the removal of the Haiku Stairs. I have become friends with some of the locals here and I hear their stories taking this trip. It's spiritual and meditating and it would be a disgrace to take them down. Yes many tourist take this trip as well and we don't want to have it over run, but I'm positive we can create a place to restrict access have people make reservations to walk on it so it's not over crowded. I know it will take a lot of money just to repair it, but I believe it's worth it. I truly believe it's one of the best hikes in the world (even though I have never done it and don't wish to illegally do it since I am not familiar with the "back way" and don't want to risk my life or a jail fine) . If you need volunteers to help restore the stairs I will gladly sign up and offer up my time! I know I haven't lived here long, but I want to help my neighbors in the things they believe in. I hope you will let others be able to take this spiritual journey. Thank you for your consideration.

The stairs are something that my girlfriend very much loved and it's something that her and me both think is beautiful and full of history. Removing it would mean removing history and in my eyes, that's very disrespectful. Maybe you do end up removing the stairs but would it give you any satisfaction that you've removed something people love?

The Haiku stairs are an incredible historic monument that should absolutely not be removed. The stairs hold immense historic value and are loved by many. Instead of removing them, perhaps an entrance fee could be charged which could help with the maintenance. Not only would this grant people the amazing opportunity of climbing these stairs, but it would also eliminate the illegal trespassing in attempt to climb them. Please, do not remove them!

Dear Sirs/Madams: The Island of Oahu is paradise and the Haiku Stairs are a marvel of technology, beauty and a landmark achievement in US history. I've traveled to ~70 countries and the views from the Haiku Stairs are unmatched. While I reckon there have been incidents of few people being injured due to lacking the experience or endurance to complete this hike, or losing their lives, there are ways to make it safe and feasible, e.g. commercially, through regulation. For example, by issuing a concession through a Public Private Partnership (PPP) whereby an experienced operator and the government collaborate to create a marvelous experience ("Haiku Experience) and destination (e.g., "Only Stairway to Heaven"). The Haiku Stairs has unique Wow factors which I'm confident will generate income for the State of Hawaii and the island of Oahu while preserving the safety and culture of the Hawaiian people and giving the rest of the world that unique experience. A well regulated and preserved Haiku Stairs will be another jewel in Oahu's crown. I have the experience in developing sustainable projects, e.g., in the Amazon Rainforest, and would be happy tand would love to be involved in such a project. THANK you for your understanding and hoping you take the necessary important steps to preserve and monetize the HAIKU Stairs.

The Haiku Stairs are such an important landmark of the state of Hawaii and so much history behind it! There are no words to describe the amazing feeling of finally reaching the top and seeing the island, it's a view that you can't see or experience anywhere else. I traveled from Texas to Hawaii mainly to be able to set foot on one of those steps and was rewarded with such a beautiful view of the island. The hike to the Haiku Stairs also allows to discover something within yourself that you didn't think you'd have spiritually, mentally and even physically. Please reconsider the removal of the Haiku Stairs and conserve them.

The stairs are an important part of Oahu for thousands of people. For me, the stairs, and the time spent in the mountains thanks to the stairs, showed me the true energy that lies in the Hawaiian islands. Many hikes to access similar mountains are dangerous and very risky for the average hiker. The stairs provide an extremely safe way to the peak while also preserving the mountainside from erosion. Thanks for taking my testimony into consideration.

The Haiku Stairs are a part of the Hawaiian history that are so important to some that they choose to climb them despite the dangers. While the aspect of ensuring safety for those who visit the stairs is important, the loss of the experience of being able to see the beauty of the island should be important as well. In order to address this issue while maintaining the safety of the attraction, funds that could be spent on tearing down the beloved stairs should instead be devoted to renovating them so that they can be safe enough for people to use, and generations to come will be able to use them to explore the unmatched views they provide of the natural world.

The Haiku Stairs are a landmark and an important part of history here in Hawaii. If the Stairs were restored and people could apply for a permit with a fee that could go towards maintenance and upkeep. If only a certain number of permits were issued each day, that would limit the amount of hiker traffic and allow for the Haiku Stairs to remain a beautiful part of the history of Oahu.

These stairs have brought people closer together, and closer to the island. I've seen how happy it makes people, and the community that has come from it. The Haiku Stairs are a beautiful and treasured landmark on the island of Oahu. So many people have climbed the stairs and had absolutely transformational experiences. It is safe. You can do it respectfully to the community. To tear them down, would be a dis-service to the mountain and the people. Please re-think the decision of destroying one of the most amazing places on earth and taking away anyone else's experience of a lifetime.

The Haiku stairs are a dream destination spot for people in all walks of life. It would be a tragedy for them to get taken down. Please remove the Haiku Stairs. I am a member of the Castle Hills community and a sixth-generation Kaneohe resident. I have grown up in this town, and have seen the changes through the years. What was once a hike that was reserved mostly for the knowledgeable locals, has now become a trendy tourist destination for social media pictures. Maintaining the stairs takes necessary resources away from our island and our community. We do not want the stairs! Please listen to the locals and remove the stairs. Mahalo!

The stairs are not only a breathtaking aspect of the island, but also a piece of history. Hiking the stairs has been the highlight of my time on Oahu, both times that I have lived there. Honestly one of the most spectacular hikes that I have ever done, it would be a shame for them to be torn down. I would rather pay and apply for a permit to hike them rather than see them gone forever.

Please do not remove the stairs. It's a safe way for people to reach the top of the ridge. People will continue to hike it the back way or by using the pre existing path left from the stairs. Removing the stairs will not only put people at risk, but it will cost the state millions of dollars in lawsuits. I say, keep the stairs and figure out a way to have the state or a private company monetize them by charging $100 dollars per hiker.

This is a draw for tourism and the aftermath of the pandemic Hawaii will need to keep multiple activities to keep the economy flow. I believe that the Haiku Stairs should remain in place and also upgraded to replace the broken sections. They are full of interesting history and also an amazing landmark. The hike from the bottom is no more difficult than some of the surrounding trails that are available to the public. I believe there is tremendous potential with having the stairway open legally and maintained so that visitors and locals alike can appreciate the beauty of the area that they provide. The Haiku Stairs are by far the most memorable and fantastic excursion that I have had the opportunity to do.

Whether the stairs are there are not won't stop people from doing it but the other paths are so much more dangerous im not sure why you'd want people to be risking this. Why not embrace the stairs great history and use them to increase tourism and revenue as well give people a truely amazing experience? please don't remove them

I believe that the stairs should stay there because they are one of the best ways to view the Hawaiian skyline. Many people spend hundreds of dollars to book helicopter trips to see that view. That hike is a way to spiritually feel connected to the islands and is available for many people.

This is an incredible hike giving people exercise to be happy and healthy. Removal of the stairs will not prevent people from hiking here and will ONLY cost more money with the same problem of neighbors being woken up by people needing to sneak by the houses. I say monetize it. Open the main entrance and charge a fee of $5 per person that wants to climb the stairs.

The Haiku Stairs is a national treasure. It would be madness to tear it down. The stairs is the safest way to reach the top of the mountain and there have been many cases of hikers needing rescue from going the legal way. It is also environmentally friendly as it stops the erosion of millions of footsteps on the mountain if the stairs were removed. Climbing the stairs is a sought after adventure. By allowing a limited number of people to climb it each day at a premium price of $100/200 the stairs would pay for itself. It would also pay for there to be a public route to the stairs therefore stopping disruption in neighbourhoods surrounding the stairs. Supporters in favour of removing the stairs have cited disruption in the local neighbourhood from hikers, the cost of keeping the stairs open as reasons to fear it down. However by simply removing the stairs you are not removing the problem. People will still hike the same way whether the stairs are there or not. By removing them you are encouraging people to come up their own ways to climb like rope ladders or other dangerous equipment. I'm strongly in favour of keeping the stairs. It's beautiful and an important part of the history of the island. It brings people like myself from all corners of the world to Oahu

The stairs are a fantastic way to get in touch with the land. Locals are complaining about noise at 3am, but if the stairs were opened and regulated, hikers would no longer go at 3am. Removing the stairs would be a tragic loss and waste of time and money for the state.

Aloha board members - Hawai'i is a beautiful place with beautiful people and I was lucky enough to live on Oahu for 5 years while attending UH. The Haiku Stairs mean a lot to me and I would LOVE for them to stay. They are a part of Oahu today and people come from all over the world to see the beautiful trails Hawai'i does. If we could get a system in place so that there is designated parking away from the surrounding neighbors, and even implement a fee to help cover any upkeep costs - I think many would appreciate it. I first saw a picture of this hike on Pinterest as a teenager and immediately thought "I must see this in real life" as people all over the world have felt as well. There is truly nothing that can compare to the blissful feeling of watching a sunrise over the ocean from atop the Ko'Olau Mountains. Please, let's find a way to make this work. Sincerely, Jaime Ness it would be a travesty to remove these stairs.. it's an important part of history, that served a purpose, period.. and now they can be used for another purpose.. by being a safe route up to the top of the mountain.. and it can also be a revenue generating scenic hike.. i would surely pay to make my way up that beautiful and majestic mountain, to experience its sights and sounds.. please save and protect the stairs.. it's one of the main things that i visited Oahu twice for.. thank you for your understanding.. Last year I had the opportunity to climb the Haiku Stairs. It was the best experience of my life. Tearing down this stairway would be truly devastating. I learned so much about myself and I was able to Challenge myself as I climbed with such a beautiful view. I took longer than most because I really took it all I. The excitement, thrill of being that high, but most of the most beautiful view I have ever seen. Please consider giving others this same experience.

The environmental impact of removing the stairs will be catastrophic. Also, removing them will lead to much less controlled hiking of the area, more potential liability through increased injuries of people trying to create their own hiking paths. This, logically, will have a negative financial impact on the area, as you will need more patrons, more emergency responders and equipment. Improve what you have, don't tear down an international treasure.

I've been wanting to go on these stairs for a long time, but I want to respect the neighbors and do it legally. I think keeping the stairs and having it maintained is the best way for everyone to enjoy it. I'm sure people will be willing to pay a fee to enter and those fees could be used to maintain the stairs. Lottery can be obtained as well so that not a lot of people go on the stairs at once each day. I hope the decision to keep the stairs is made so that everyone can enjoy the beautiful island of Hawaii from the it's highest view point.

This is a beautiful and historical part of Hawaii. It also helps prevent erosion from hikers. This a great opportunity to repair the stairs and even sell daily passes to utilize the stairs to help maintain the most spectacular views. Rather than paying for security to guard the stairs, have staff and daily passes with waivers to utilize the stairs. Don't destroy the stairs, rather improve them.

The stairs represent Hawaii. They exemplify the beauty of the island, the mountains, and the water. Everytime I drive H3 the stairs represent a journey and excitement that no other place has in the world. To me they represent the land and beauty of the people showing that Hawaii really does lead to heaven. Please don't take them down or you are taking down the spirit of the people

Please find a way to preserve the stairs! They are a wonderful resource for the community and an excellent way for people to safely access a beautiful natural wonder. Access can be managed in a way which eliminates traffic and impact on the surrounding neighborhoods and generates revenue for the community - responsible operators can provide guidance and transportation to hikers, just as is done in many other areas of the islands to safely manage access to natural resources. Please preserve this resource for future generations of residents and visitors. Thank you.

The Haiku stairs are an important part of history that should be allowed to stay intact with upgrades and improvements. There can be a smart way to develop the stairs and nearby trails while maintaining the pristine nature and neighborhood privacy. People would pay a fee to explore this area, if it was done safely. What good is having beauty if it can't be observed and enjoyed in a responsible manner.

I oppose the removal of Haiku Stairs because destroying the stairs will mean destroying the history and beauty of what Hawaii has to offer. I believe the best way to approach this is to maintain and make any repairs on the stairs. In addition, charge people to hike and and down the stairs as well as having people sign a liability waiver if anything were to happen.

It's such an iconic place. Hard to understand why it can't be a state maintained hike like so many places in Hawaii. It should be landmarked and the beauty should be shared with everyone. If it was maintained and safe and maybe people did proper tours of it without entering through private property it could benefit everyone. I understand the land is private property but people have volunteered to maintain the stairs and keep it safe and clean. Please do not tear down this history. There is nothing like it in the world!

The stairs are an inspirational experience that allows people to connect back to nature and their true selves. It illuminates the lack of need for material possession and enhances relationships. People are better for this experience. It would be a devastating loss to all humanity to have them removed.

I think they should be preserved as they have quite a historical significance. If we tear this down it sets a bad example to the younger generation and they lose a very special part of their history. It should be deemed a heritage site and preserved for generations to come. Besides people will use the trails to go to the top there whether you tear down the stairs or not. It's better to maintain them and make it safe for the few people who do go there.

The Haiku Stairs are one of the great historical sites left remaining in the United States. Beyond the beauty of the mountains they lie on these stairs are an important part of the Military History of the United States and specifically the great island of Hawaii. These stairs along with many other sites on Oahu represent a time when Hawai'i sat on the front lines of a world wide conflict. To remove this site would represent a massive disregard for that history. The stairs also represent a fantastic opportunity for raising funds. Every year thousands and thousands of hikers seek out the stairs despite the fact that they are closed off to the public. If the stairs are made into a site that can actually be visited as both an adventurous hike like nowhere else on earth and as an educational site to help tell the story of Hawaii and world war 2 the amount of revenue that can be generated from such a site absolutely cannot be underestimated.

My family and I had the opportunity last summer to visit Oahu and the many breathtaking sceneries. We didn't however have enough time to climb the Haiku stairs, and was a little bummed-but I have it bookmarked in my brain as a must do when I am able to go back and visit Oahu. I have seen pictures of other people who have climbed them, and the view looks amazing. I can't imagine getting rid of that view, or the feeling of being on top of the world.

I've had this on my bucket list for years and have been waiting to do them safely. I had heard that they would be repaired and was looking forward to this completion. How terrible to have them torn down instead. This hike is know by travelers from across the globe. I certainly would support a fund if that's what's needed to get these stairs back up to a safe hiking condition.

Insert Written Testimony Haiku Stairs is a landmark, a piece of history, a place of beauty and a sight to see. I feel the state needs to work with Friends of Haiku stairs as their mission and plan of execution of that mission is clear. Deconstructing these stairs is not the answer.

My sister has experienced the stairs multiple times and came back from it completely life changed. I believe there is an ability to be one with your surroundings when there is nothing but beautiful Hawaii surrounding you. I would love to experience these stairs due to the great word that goes out with the attraction it brings. Truly life changing and it's still on my bucket list and many others as well. It's a piece of history that will be taken down if it is decided, and I know that's not respectful to who put it up in the first place....

The haiku stairs are an iconic hike on the island. Even getting to look out upon them from the backside hike is an incredible view and one of my most treasured memories hiking. I support having people pay a fee to hike to support any repairs needed for the stairs. People will pay. As cynical as it sounds, they want a photo and are willing to pay to get it. It's almost like an amusement park for tourists, but in nature. The backside hike is beautiful, and the stairs are the cherry on top.

Access to nature is becoming more and more restricted or is being over run by tourists and tour groups. This is a historical and unique natural wonder that makes Hawaii special and should be preserved and carefully utilized for futue generations on Oahu.

I was fortunate to hike up the Moanarua Valley trail to the top of the stairs 2 years ago and it remains a highlight of my travels and I have a photo on my wall looking down the stairs, a truly amazing sight and significant piece of history. I totally support retaining and if possible restoring the stairs as dedication to all who fought in the war and to keep this as an important part of the history of beautiful Hawaii.

I believe that the money that would be spent to tear down the stairs would be better spent repairing them and making them safer. The stairway is such a state treasure it would be a shame to lose it. The stairway is a great attraction for both tourists and locals alike. Hawaii should invest more in making their hikes and natural wobders more accessible, not trying to make them inaccessible.

Nothing else in the entire world like this exists, nothing! It's literally a part of history! Everyday, more and more, people are finding it easier to do away with something because a particular few don't see a purpose it in anymore. Even when something doesn't hold its original purpose anymore, it still holds value. A value that tells both a story and is priceless!

I oppose the removal of the Haiku Stairs because they're a part of the history of the island, and of the United States of America. They mean something to the people who live here and the people who don't, they're not like some meaningless random stairs somewhere. It's the Haiku stairs, and I think tearing them out is sick. It's like the nazis burning books, or the burning of the Notre Dam Cathedral. They should be preserved as the amazing piece of historical architecture that they are. Please don't tear them out. If anything is to be done with them preserve and repair them, and open them as a legal hike, charge an entry fee if it makes you feel better. But please do not tear them down.

I want to go into this saying that I've personally never been to the haiku stairs And I know that makes everyone wonder why someone would want to oppose the removal of them it's simple really The haiku stairs are amazing I know people and I've talk to people who have been to them and have climb them they all describe it as It being one of the best parts about living or visiting Hawaii It is so much history and is such a defining aspect of Honolulu in my opinion of course it may not be safe or in general may not be perfect but nothing in life ever is so again I simply I say no to the removal of the stairs The world has so much going on I don't think it's even necessary to Add on the removal of the stairs That's all I have to say it doesn't make sense to remove them and there's no need to start any trouble or ruin a great piece of Hawaii history

The Stairs should not be removed, but preserved for future generation to experience and enjoy. They have become a part of the island and it's history. It represents the past, present, and future for many people all over the world. the Stairs have become a more than just icon, but a place where many people have had a life changing experiences. This is because It is one of the greatest experiences and adventures not just on the island, but in the entire world. The removal of the Stairs would be completely detrimental to both the island's morale, and the economy. The amount of resources, time, money, and manpower it would take to remove them would be unwise, given our current economic state after COVID-19. Keep the legacy alive, keep out spirits alive, and let us keeping taking the Stairs to freedom.

Testimony favoring the opening of Haiku Stairs under the management plan: 1. Haiku Stairs is the most desirable hike on the island. 2 Haiku Stairs is one of the safest hikes on the island (despite propaganda to the contrary). 3. Haiku Stairs is a valuable historical structure. 4. Haiku Stairs is a valuable asset to scientists and teachers. 5. Haiku Stairs is an asset to the Visitor Industry. 6. Haiku Stairs can be managed with a net-positive economic cost-benefit. 7. Tens of thousands of hikers have climbed the Stairs without requiring rescue or serious injury. 8. Tens of thousands of dollars have been expended to convince anti-stairs forces that it should be opened. 9. Thousands of man-hours have been expended listening to testimonies that tended to prove that the Stairs were valuable to the community and safe to use. 10. Haiku Stairs is one of the few remaining reminders of the citizens of Kaneohe's contributions to the fighting of World War II.

Hands down one of the coolest places that I've even traveled to. The safety of the stairs allows the person to absorb the glory of the island and experience the peace of being able to be present in a location that would not be accessible if the stairs were not there. I've never felt so alive. It is truly a magical place. I would pay money to get a permit, pay money to be properly harnessed, and sign any waiver to go back and do it again. I believe there is a way to allow people to venture to that peak and do it safely. Even if it means building stairs on the legal side to align with the side that enters through the houses. Please don't tear them down. I would be so sad that I could not go back.

I love the stairs! They are a part of Hawaii's history that offer a world class view that many people from all over seek when traveling here. I believe they can be operated in a safe manner and maintained by charging a small fee say $100 for unlimited use and $25 or even $50 for non residents. I believe people would pay for the experience knowing that it's maintained. Also finding an alternate access to the road instead of walking through neighborhoods and disturbing residents would eliminate what I believe is most of the opposition to the stairs.

I had the pleasure of hiking the Haiku stairs in late 2018, and it is the most amazing experience I've had to date. I found a guide through Instagram, who organizes hikes all over the world and had organized several legal hikes of the Haiku stairs before I joined him. We hiked up the back, the legal way and came to the stairs and enjoyed the views. I was with 20 people, our guide had us well prepared. It was safe, all of us thoroughly enjoyed the experience. Please do not tear the stairs down. Everyone who is safe should have the opportunity to experience this. It's a once in a lifetime opportunity.

Please reconsider restoring or leaving the stairs. These stairs are a historical and iconic figure of the island. Financially removing the stairs is a burden to those involved. I understand safety is the upmost priority. I think the money should be put towards restoration. Thank you for considering my vote.

The stairs have given countless people the change to experience a challenge and adventure and view of our island that is unparalleled. To take it down instead of fixing it would be disrespectful to the many people who would be willing to work to make it safer to allow this one-in-a-million hike to live on. Don't take away the hike out of fear or out of unwillingness to put in a little work. If you need there to be less risk, implement a few regulations; Perhaps enforce that a waiver must be submitted before hiking (like is already required for a few hikes on government property around the island). The waiver could stipulate that each person accepts the risks and will be responsible for emergency evacuation should it be required. Even implementing a small fee associated with the waiver who's funds would be allocated to the stair maintenance. Please vote to keep this landmark and treasured adventure a part of our island. Vote to put in the effort to make something more beautiful and more safe, instead of tearing it down out of fear. Vote for growth and improvement and know that the people of Hawaii will be there to put in the work to make sure something we love will be around and be safe for many generations to come. Mahalo for your consideration.

It's hard not to fall under the same cliché things that are said about the magical and spiritual experience that are the haiku stairs... That is until you've experienced it yourself. The rich history behind the construction to the breathtaking views of these incredible stairs deserve a much better option as to just take them down. Everything that seems to be the issue with the stairs seems to have a very easy and reasonable way as to fix them. And if we want to speak the language that will be most understood by most, money, there seems to be a goldmine that could be made here. The wait list for people wanting to do the hike would damn near rival Disney's exclusive club 33, 10 year wait-list which requires a 10k a year membership to begin with. I'm no math guru nor do I understand the logistics side of things but you can't tell me we can't set up a professional tour up and down the stairs to help continue the boost tourism in Hawaii, in fact I'd say it would easily overtake the Arizona Memorial as the most visited tourist attraction if it weren't for the amount of space up and down the stairs and perhaps one of the most sought out experiences in the WORLD. Charging 100-200 dollars a person would surely help please some of the money hungry people whom have issue with the stairs in the long term of things. Which in turn could surely help pay for everything needed. I hope wiser heads prevail in the decision, it would be an utmost shame for such an experience to go to waste

My name is Jose Marquez Im 28 years old, I just heard that the famous Haiuku Stairs wha t to be removed, for me this is so sad, this is the #1 attraction for those that are hiker lovers, removing those stairs is gonna cause the death of so many animals that live there and are adapt to that ecosystem. Why do nstead of removing them why you guys do not put them in better conditions so ut can be safer go and climb them and you can charge a fee for the entrance I know that MILLION of people would be more than happy to pay it. Conserve nature do not kill it! Thank you for reading this. Have a good day! Jose

Good morning to you all, I wish to express mine and my partners wish to save the Haiku stairs. This Hawaiian landmark is not only unbelievably breathtaking, but a piece of true Hawaiian history. I am aware that disrespectful tourists have become a problem to your city; however please know that we are not all the same way. I have been lucky enough to visit Oahu once; the way in which I connected with the island and with the Aloha spirit is something that cannot be explained in this short paragraph. My suggestion is I STRONGLY believe tourists should reserve the opportunity to hike the stairs with a fee payable to the nation of Hawaii to cover all maintenance costs, this may even reduce the amount of people who wish to hike the stairs but don't want to pay for it. Please we beg of you to save the Haiku stairs. Thank you.

This was one of the most amazing adventures and outdoor experience I've ever done. The history, unbelievable labor and beauty of the stairs, views and just being there is unlike anything in the world. I think there's other priorities going on in the world and Hawaii for that matter that could be focused on besides this!!! I've been all over the entire planet and this is something very special you have here!! Please just leave it alone; let it go and move on to something more crucial. Thanks for your time!!

This is a historic trail that should not be removed. Besides the fact that the removal itself poses a threat to the environment, it is a hike that will continue to be trekked by visitors and locals regardless of whether the stairs are still there. Leaving the stairs intact will at least minimize the danger and the need for extreme expenditures on rescues of people who are injured or trapped on the path.

Please don't remove the Haiku stairs. They are truly a wonder of the world and have the potential to drive a lot of tourism and promote love for Mother Nature. If we could instead implement a system that ensures the locals aren't disturbed and hikers can still access the stairs, I'm sure that everyone will respect any arrangements that are instuted.

How dare the government tear up such a beloved and cherished part of my life. If they fixed the stairs and paid people to look after it and guide hikers, there would be fewer deaths and fewer people trying to go when it's dark out. I remember when this was easily accessible, people would walk this all the time. It's like tearing down a priceless piece of Kane'ohe history. It's like tearing down Iolani Palace. It's like tearing down the Duke Kahanamoku statue. It's one of the very few beautiful memories I have of my hometown. Please don't take this away.

While preserving the natural beauty and respecting the private property of local residents should always be of the utmost importance, I feel the stairs should stay. I truly hope the Board of Water Supply/City of Honolulu/Hawaii will retain and also find a way to maintain the Haiku Stairs. There is so much good hiking in Hawaii, but NOWHERE ELSE in Hawaii (or anywhere else!) can you find a hike quite like this one! The views, the history of the stairs, the fact that not everyone can do such a hike all combine to make it a bucket list hike for so many! Though I live on the mainland, I was born on Oahu and visit Hawaii as often as I can. I have been planning my next trip to include hiking the stairs if there would be a legal approach and way to hike it. There is a romance to those stairs that has enthralled me, and I'm sure many of us, myself included, would pay entrance fees if that's what it takes to make the stairs a permanent asset for Hawaii. I'd love to be able to take my grandchildren to hike the stairs when each one reaches young adulthood....the oldest is only 4 now, but what a wonderful right of passage to adulthood that would be. The stairs are so unique and I can't imagine the state intentionally removing one of the most unique experiences in Hawaii. That's saying a lot in a state full of beautiful experiences. I normally stay on the Big Island when I come...because I love to hike there, but the next trip I want to stay on Oahu for a while mainly because of the Haiku Stairs.

Please save them for future generations!

Haiku stairs are a trademark on Oahu. Spending money to have them removed is a one way plan. Spending money to repair and open to the public is how you make revenue for an incredible item the board of water supply is sitting on. Spending money to have them removed makes the board of water supply spend and have nothing in return.

It has been my dream for over 10 years to come here and climb up to those highs when I could afford it, and now I am hearing this and I'm devastated that this dream may never come true. Everyone who has been up there that I know says that it was the absolute highlight of their trips and that it was a memory that will last them a lifetime. By removing the stairs you are robbing so many of that magical experience.

I had my first solo trip planned to Hawaii in March 2020 and had to cancel due to COVID-19. I have always dreamed of hiking the Stairway to Heaven (the legal way up the back). I had planned to hike this on my solo trip and I want the opportunity to hike this when the world reopens! Please keep the stairs! This is an iconic part of Hawaii and the world and draws many people to Hawaii. This has always been a dream of mine and I would love the opportunity for that dream to come true.

Good Morning, I would like to express my disappointment at the proposal to remove Haiku Stairs. I have not yet had the opportunity to hike the stairs but would very much like to do so (legally). I have long been drawn to Hawaii. The beauty, culture and warmth expressed through everyone I have met when visiting is very special. We were married in Hawaii and it holds a special place in our hearts forever. I have been captivated by the stairs since first hearing about them. Aside from the significant WW2 history of the stairs, the stunning landscape captured through so many photos has left me wanting to hike the stairs in the future. Hawaii has such natural pristine beauty and it would be a shame to remove access to this area to visitors and locals alike. Could consideration be given to upgrading the stairs for safety and preserving this site for future generations? Thank you for the opportunity to comment. Kind Regards Justin Sydney, Australia

The stairs are eventually going to fall apart which will lead to someone seriously getting hurt. The stairs make it too easy for just some random Joe Shmoe to go up there. By taking them down, that would force people to hike the LEGAL backside. Which is significantly longer. Which would lead people that shouldn't hike it to actually not try to. TAKE THEM DOWN.

Removal of the stairs would be a a travesty. Would it be okay to destroy Mt. Rushmore or to purposely destroy a reef that has been created by ship wreckage? Some man made things become treasures and the stairs are just that. Making it to the top can be a transformative experience for many. It was for me. Starting at the base I had tons of things in my head that were weighing me down in life. Somehow making it to the top to see the beautiful views and the feeling of accomplishment just lifted that burden allowing me to see the beauty that is all around me in life if I just change my perspective. Additionally, the path up the stairs is much safer than the back route that is longer and eroding from the foot traffic. The stairs actually help to prevent erosion and destruction of the beauty that is Oahu. There has to be middle ground to appease the residents at the base and those wanting to take on the challenge of the stairs to enjoy its riches at the top. I strongly advocate for the keeping of the stairs. Thank you for your consideration of my views.

Losing this feature would be extremely detrimental to the heart and soul of Hawaii and Oahu. Just turn the hike into a park with a paid parking lot or offer lottery tickets to keep activity low. By announcing the removal of the stairs you'll increase activity as more people will attempt to hike it while they have the chance.

My husband and I hiked to the stairs on our honeymoon and it was by far the best experience we have ever had. It would be a shame to tear down the ability to get to such a beautiful place. With all of the negative in this world- the ability to be outdoors and climb to a place as beautiful as this.. everyone should be voting to repair the stairs and make it an actual attraction for people instead of tearing it down and having it be illegal. The Haiku stairs will forever be one of my favorite memories of all time. Please allow others to have the chance to experience Hawai'i from one of the best views possible. I (and I'm sure MANY others) would financially support the repair of these stairs to make it safe for the community to have the monument stay!

The cost of removing the Haiku Stairs is a waste of taxpayer money, there are a number of other ways in which we could better our community such as repaving roads. The money could also be used to better Oahu's public schools system or to aid citizens in this time of global crisis while a record breaking number of people are currently unemployed. Overall the removal of the stairs is a waste of time and resources that could be used in a variety of more beneficial ways.

I wish to keep the stairs maintained and in place. The biggest opposition appears to be money. The easiest way to eliminate the cost issue is to deal with the liability issue. But when we look at cost with one eye closed, we only see the expenditures. We may not notice the attraction it brings to the islands. I for one don't like a populated hike or tourist attraction. But Stairway to Heaven also generates revenue for the State. I know more than a handful of people that travel to Oahu just to hike the stairs. I'm sure the upkeep of the stairs is less than that of Diamond Head, Koko head, Kuliouou or Pearl Harbor (all of which attract people to Oahu). It would be in the States interest to keep the stairs active. Perhaps we need to look at our current liability laws to remedy fear of legal actions. Countries like New Zealand have no such discourse and they happen to be the number 1 adventure country. We could limit the amount of people on the stairs at one time. You could pose a tourist tax for entry. If you still decide to remove the stairs. You should be removing the whole stair case. This way there would be no attempt to climb the steep valleys or hazards of old collapsing and falling steps. Also on the talk of removal, I have personally hiked multiple trails where there is new water pipes in place along side a rusting and collapsed old water pipe. I would urge for the removal of old remnants of water lines/construction. Thank you

These stairs hold massive history on the Hawaiian islands. Tearing them down would be tearing down history and culture. I see how they are deemed unsafe but preserving them and possibly fixing them would be amazing for the area. The haiku stairs is on thousands of people's bucket lists and they deserve the right to potentially see them.

I oppose removal of the Haiku stairs for the following reasons: 1) It's historical significant from WW2 2) It is the best hike in all of Hawaii and bring joy/pleasure to everyone that completes the hike. 3) It's one of the treasures of Hawaii 4) The preservation of the Stairs can be structured in a manner where the cost to the taxpayers is neutralized (or it may even create a profit). There are a number of alternatives, many of them have been noted in other testimonies in further detail.

Probably the most beautiful hike (the backway) that I have ever done. I believe that you could really make this an amazing tourist destination. Even have qualified guides taking people up so they don't leave garbage or destroy this beauty. Charge them a fee if you need to help preserve the stairs, most people are paying for guided tours already.

I went to Hawaii and this island only because I knew the stairs were here and they were on my bucket list to do. They changed my life so much and it was a great start to my marriage as this was my honey moon. These stairs serve a great history to the island and they need to be repaired instead of torn down. People are still going to find a way to climb it making it even more dangerous if you take them down. Please think about how these stairs have brought people together. People have had there best moments on those stairs and have proposed to start there life. Every step you get higher u think about how beautiful this island is and how amazing this planet just is. It makes Hawai'i a destination for many people to go explore. Please keep the stairs!!!

I have been lucky enough to have visited Oahu twice in my life. My first time was back in 2008, I saw all the normal attractions and loved every minute of it. But when I returned again in 2018 all those attractions were over run with people. Diamond head has now turned into a single file walking path because there are sop many people visiting these attractions now. The increase in tourism has changed the feel of so many of those sites that I had loves 10 years prior. But on my second trip I decided to do this hike. And for those that have experience it know it is the best the only way to experience Hawaii. You are engulfed in the landscape and the views of the ocean, it changes your how you feel about yourself, your life and your purpose. And that's coming from someone who doesn't think about those things very often. Those stairs have been there for years and are one of the most amazing things to do on the island. And it ended up being the ONE thing that I did that didn't involve 100's Of other tourists. In the 78 years the stairs have been there people are still able to experience them on their own. You can't compare an experience like that with what other attractions in Hawaii have become, which is overrun and crowded. Why destroy a piece of your history when it's not harming your future?

This structure of beauty, immersion and experience in nature, encapsulates so much of what makes Hawaii great for so many visitors who love to capture the beauty of Hawaii while getting their adventure fix. Please do not tear this down. I know of three proposals planned to happen at the very top of Haiku stairs and removing them would be a tragedy for so many reasons! I'm certain private funds would be donated to help the upkeep of these stairs if that is your greatest concern.

Removing the stairs would be like removing the history behind them. They are special to natives as well as travelers and provide such an offering for those who are fortunate to travel upon them. The haiku stairs/ stairway to heaven is a vital living piece of Hawaii's history. It would be a shame to tear it down. Many people look foreword to crossing this off their bucket list and instead of tearing it down it should be maintained like it always should have been. It's another motivator to get out and get active and fight obesity.

I believe that the Haiku Stairs is unnecessary and also unsafe. Not only is it illegal and disturbing the residents of the neighborhood because of disrespecting and entitled locals and visitors but it's dangerous. Even if there were restrictions put on when people were allowed to hike I still feel those rules would be violated. We would also still be putting people in danger/at risk if we were to keep it open and maintain it. All the metal on the land is unhealthy for it and anyone who wants it keep is only wanting it for their own selfish needs. There are plenty of other hikes to enjoy. Please, TEAR IT DOWN.

These stairs have both a historical significance and touristic draw for Hawaii. Legalizing and monetizing the use of these stairs could bring in significant revenue to the state. These stairs are an “accomplishment” and sought out destination and view on Oahu, so much so that people have been willing to risk hefty fines and arrests to access them. Do not remove them. Make them safe and utilize them to share the aloha of Hawaii and generate revenue.

The Haiku Stairs are near and dear to many people's hearts. I know this because a lot of my closest friends have visited here. One of my friends did an internship guiding tourists up the landmark. She is in love with the stairs. There are so many adventures waiting to happen in this beautiful place. I'd like to visit myself when I get the chance. Please leave the stairs for other people to experience climbing them and seeing Hawaii from a new perspective. There is no point in destroying something so breathtaking.

My family and I are extremely fortunate to visit Hawaii twice per year for the last 20 years. We did have the opportunity to do the haiku stairs from the long way where we wouldn't disturb the neighbourhood at the bottom of the stairs. I believe an epic landmark such as this should not be destroyed. I understand how it must be a bit annoying from a local perspective but it is a wonderful piece of history that can be enjoyed still today. It is monuments like this that really bring the past to life. Removing the stairs would be such a terrible waste in my opinion. Thank you

I have been to and seen the beautiful Haiku Stairs. They are more than stairs they represent history and the most influential part of me visiting Hawaii. Instead of taking time to tear them down they should be preserved! Preserve our nation's history. Pearl Harbor and those stairs are such a critical part in our US story. Use these steps to remind future generations that heroes stood there. Use this opportunity to spread knowledge and if anything promote more tourism and money to the state by offering it as a state tour or something! Do anything but tear this landmark down!!

I haven't climbed them but I respect what they offer and represent. It's part of immense cultural heritage. It's a pilgrimage for many. And if the BWS can't appreciate and protect that then they need to stop pretending they care about the people whose spaces they've invaded I the first place. Pull your collective heads out already. A couple years ago I heard the excuses "we aren't in tourism etc." You know how much safer it would be? The praise you may receive, the income would over shadow your repairs and maintenance and employee costs. Especially now, especially in this time of shifting thoughts and priorities, and ideals. Where companies are moving to clean energy, and helping build respirators for the cause etc. I would urge youe board to consider how ELSE they can give back to a society they've monopolized and gouged for so long. Its what your marketing department would consider a smart move. You garner respect. You seem you care. You'll be surprised at the reception. Cause I promise even though we all give you our dollars. You don't exactly track well. Be amazing. Be an example, and prove that you actually care about nature, and the culture and aina which has not just given but sacrificed for your bonuses and livelihood. I've tried not to be emotional or scathing. And it's a bit hard because I feel so connected to this place.

I first visited the stairs in January of 2019. I was planning to do it again sometime in the near future because the whole journey to the top is so powerful and just so rewarding. It allows you to see Hawaii from a whole new angle, really letting you see everything this beautiful island has to offer. As someone who is from NY and willing to travel thousands of miles just to climb the stairs again, please let them live on. It's more than just a hike, these stairs provide a sense of accomplishment. Once you're at the top, you suddenly forget how exhausted, tired and hot you are, and become overwhelmed with this sense of bliss provided by a natural beauty unlike anything you've seen before. Everyone deserves a chance to see what these stairs have to offer

Hawai'i is blessed to have such a beautiful and significant piece of history in the Haiku stairs. As such, the Haiku stairs should be preserved - it would be really disappointing for this site to be destroyed and this is not an action that can be undone. These stairs are one of the major elements promoting tourism to Hawaii. With a little love these stairs could be absolutely amazing. Those opposing the stairs only do so because of the current illegal nature enthusiasts take to climb the stairs. Legalization, parking, and some repairs would do wonders for the community. These stairs are the reason we chose to come to Hawaii instead of any other closer tropical island. The state would be better off repairing them/making them safer and creating them as a historic park and they could even charge an entrance fee, and limit the amount of people that can enter like the Yosemite Half Dome permits.

The stairs are a huge lure for tourists and tourists are responsible for 60% of jobs in Hawaii. Don't detract from the main source of economy. As well assist with allowing immersion in the environment but keeping to just a small area without destroying all the beautiful landscape surrounding the stairs

We as humans rely on our connection with the earth. These steps, and this hike have allowed myself and so many others to see the beauty of Hawaii. Generations to come should have the ability to experience this breathtaking walk if they so choose. The removal of the steps will only lead to dangerous hiking being done here and elsewhere.

I visit Oahu frequently and the Haiku stairs are a landmark and part of the history of the island. They are something that make Oahu unique and add so much character to the island. They have a story and an importance that we should be preserving. As time goes by it is easier than ever for people to forget about WWII and Hawaii's role in it. These stairs serve as a reminder and also at times spark a desire in young people to learn more about our shared history. Please leave the stairs up!

It would cost a lot of money to remove the stairs. I think that the money could be better spent on improving or repairing the stairs. They are one of the best spots on the island, and their removal would be a tragedy. To many they are an experience, right of passage, tradition, ultimate accomplishment, etc. Please consider other ways to relieve the Board of Water Supply, city, county, or state of liability...without removing them.

After living on the beautiful island of O'ahu for two years, my time to finally hike the Haiku Stairs came about as my birthday was around the corner two days before I left island. After working many days throughout the year around the island, and feeling into the presence of the mana through the hikes, waterfalls, and oceans, I felt more connected than ever when I took the last few steps to the top of the Haiku stairs. Never did I feel I was in danger, and never to I feel like I could get a view like such in my life again. If the stairs would've made me felt like I was in danger, I would support the removal... but due to the fact that these are sturdy stairs, and have shaped me in so many ways within my life now... I oppose the removal of the Haiku Stairs, and hope you see the importance of this journey for all humans that get to live on the beautiful island, and also get to visit from around the world. One of the last slices of heaven we all get to collectively share, and I hope I get to continue to share with future generations to come. A place that is safe, a place that will nourish you, and a place that will transform your soul.

Aloha, I have been a resident of Oahu for 32 years and am an avid hiker. Living in Kaneohe for many of those years, I have had the pleasure of hiking the stairs probably close to 50x (before they were made illegal). I have also accessed the back of the stairs (satellite "house") from Moanalua Valley trail several times recently. I do agree 100% that the satellite needs to be removed as it is no longer secured correctly and I would not be surprised if it blew off in a big storm. As I have not been on the lower stairs in recent years, I am unaware of the condition of those stairs. I would love to be able to legally hike the stairs again. The views are absolutely magnificent and cover the Windward side from Chinaman's Hat to the Mokulua Islands and South to Honolulu and Pearl Harbor and even towards Central Oahu. However, as much as I would like them reopened, there are some things that need to be considered. The stairs are narrow and other than the landings there are no safe places for people to pass. If you are not familiar with the stairs, they are the width of a ladder and very steep in many sections. Passing requires crawling over the stair railing where you would be perched on the side of the mountain. This hike could become very unsafe if large numbers of people were hiking it at the same time. A suggestion I have, would be to allow the stairs open only from Moanalua Valley. The hike is significantly longer and more challenging from this start location. But this would eliminate a lot of inexperienced hikers and also alleviate the parking issues in the Haiku neighborhood. Another suggestion would be to allow hikers to the lower "house" and remove the stairs below this point which are the most dangerous ones. The stairs between the 2 "houses" are wider, allow passing, not on an exposed ridge, and in much better condition. Doing this would enable hikers to enjoy the views and enjoy a part of the history of the stairs while minimizing risk. Thank you for taking the time to read and consider my opinion.

I believe removing the Haiku stairs would be removing a piece of the islands rich history. I also would worry that the removal process would disrupt wildlife as well as plant life on the mountain. Further, by removing the stairs you would be adding a vast amount of scrap metal to landfill. Lastly I worry for the safety of workers who would complete the job as well as the money this vast project would cost.

The haiku stairs are a beautiful part of Hawaii. They've been there for a long time and there is no good enough reason to take them down. Having lived in Hawaii I loved authenticity the haiku stairs brought to the hike. Not even hiking on them but having the stairs there shows the importance and purpose Hawai'i had when involved with WWII.

These are an attraction i have visited many times in my life during my trips to Hawaii. They are a place that many, many people love dearly and it is a truly amazing thing to be able to accomplish and say you have done in your life. If they were to be torn down, it would cause devastation to many, and all for no good reason. Think of all the positives about them- keeping people fit and healthy, increase in tourism and many more! Please, from the bottom of my heart- don't do this!

The stairs provide a rich history and magnificent view of Oahu. It was worth the risk of getting ticketed, but it would be an even greater worth to be maintained. I'm sure anyone would pay hefty fees (with kamaaina pricing as well) just to be able to hike this beauty as a once in a lifetime experience, and to even be able to return as they wish. There have been more deaths on other trails considered "less dangerous" than the stairs, and every hiker takes that risk on any trail they are unfamiliar with. I strongly oppose the removal of Haiku Stairs.

I think that the Haiku stairs are a beyond beautiful landmark of Oahu, and very appealing from a tourism perspective as well. I understand the concerns of some regarding safety/people not respecting the area by littering etc., but I think those concerns could easily be addressed. As a Canadian tourist who is both respectful of the environment and the culture/history of Hawaii, I would be devastated if the stairs were dismantled. I would be in favour of repairs and a fee charged to non-residents of Hawaii to climb the stairs. A website could be set up where a fee is paid for a permit and a waiver is signed. Fees could help pay for both the repairs and also any staff required for enforcement, etc.

I propose keeping the Haiku stairs and instead changing how they are accessed. If given the chance between having to trespass or paying a fee, people would gladly pay to experience the beauty of the Haiku stairs. Donations can be requested to make the appropriate repairs and make the stairs safe for use.

The Haiku Stairs are a beautiful and world renowned landmark on Oahu. During the time I spent on the island, I had the opportunity to take the neighboring 9 mile hike several times. The connections that I made and the memories I walked away with were priceless and I want everyone to have the opportunity to have their own experience. Though extensive and tough, my journey throughout this hike taught me a lot about my own resilience and camaraderie amongst my fellow humans. Please consider leaving the Haiku stairs where they are, and instead making an effort to begin repairs to make them safe again.

I oppose to the removal of Haiku stairs! These stairs are the main reason I came to Hawaii from the UK. There are such a beauty to the Island! The history of the stairs themselves, why they are there! What they were used for! The are a beautiful piece of history that I don't believe should be taken down! There must be a way of financially keeping them there, like fix certain parts to make as safe as possible..get people to sign waivers of climbing at their own risk..& make some money from the people that want to climb them and see the spectacular views of the Island each and ever step gives! It would take a few years but you would eventually see a profit that could be spent on the neighbouring neighbourhood or local charities as well as maintaining the stairs! I really hope you make the right decision.

Haiku stairs should be PROTECTED and MAINTAINED. There are so many options in which the safety of hikers can be maintained, with minimal rescue efforts- for example, give permits to those who wish to hike, and ticket those who do not have permit. Open this to residents only to prevent weary tourists from attempting.

I have never been to the stairs because it is illegal but it is definitely on my bucket list. If you were to leave it open, make the state benefit from it. Make people buy permits and charge people to go up. Have a security there so that someone is enforcing the permits. This is a beautiful tourist attraction and I bet the locals love it. Make it something legal but with more effort and money to do it so only those who really want to, should be able to. Obviously, it should be free for residents of Hawaii.

I have never had the pleasure of using these steps but it is a wonderful way for people to enjoy nature. It looks like a wonderful escape from a concrete jungle, a way to be at peace, to satisfy the soul, and remember the beauty of nature. Went hiking the Moanalua Valley Trail (Kulana'ahane) during our dream come true honeymoon on O'ahu in 2019. It was one of the best trails we ever did! We hoped to get to see the Haiku stairs at the end of the trail but had to give up on the way and return due to very muddy conditions. We would love to return to beautiful Hawaii in the next years and see the stairs from „the other side“ in a safe and legal way which also supports the beautiful people of Hawaii and their Culture. I really hope there is a way to preserve this precious and unique spot!

I stand in support of saving the Haiku Stairs. The currently legal path of scaling the mountain is unattainable for so many and the stairs provide a safe alternative. Surely with the right management they have to be an enormous asset to Your tourist economy. The day I reached the summit Of Haiku will forever be my most exhilarating experience. It was My best day and the sense of awe I felt for your beautiful Hawaii and even life after that day will never be forgotten. Please invest in saving this unique asset. So many miss out on the beauty of the mountain and many risk their lives to challenge Haiku when there is a far safer option right there that could be restored and managed safely and in a way that brings income and beyond that huge joy.

I believe it would be a tragedy to remove the Haiku stairs. This hike with its breathtaking views of beautiful Oahu inspires anyone who has been fortunate enough to make it to the top. In a time when the world needs inspiration and hope, it would be great if a solution to preserve them is found.

The Haiku stairs is a monumental landmark that both locals and tourists from all over the world love and appreciate. It's a safer way to the top of the mountain that offers hikers an alternative, emotional connection to the land which is an unimaginable feeling. Plenty of tourists flock to Hawaii for the sole purpose of this hike and tearing it down will have a significant negative impact on the economy. Locals alike value and appreciate it just as immensely, if not more than the tourists. I urge everyone that is in support of removing the stairs to hike the stairs to understand why so many are opposed to the removal; or at least reconsider the why.

Hawai'i has an abundance of beautiful landscapes and stunning hikes: but none compare to the Haiku Stairs. The stairs represent an opportunity for us all to embrace a special respect that is necessary to save this landmark. A removal would likely lead to visitors attempting to hike a dangerous path. Keeping the stairs allows for limited guides to provided a special moment for visitors. In this situation where tourism is hit temporarily, when tourism becomes safe again, why would we not embrace these landmarks?

Not only do the stairs contribute to the culture, story, and history of Oahu, but they're also the safest way to get to the top of the mountain. I had a friend attempt to hike the other side because the stairs were illegal, and he got stuck on the mountain, wind nearly knocking him off, and had to be rescued by helicopter. When I climbed the stairs, not only did I feel safe, but the experience also completely changed my life. It is my most cherished memory, and to see the stairs come down would be the most heart wrenching thing imaginable. Not only would it deprive others of the same safety I got, but it would also rob them of a chance to have a life changing moment like I did. But this is not solely about me or my individual experiences. This is about the character that it brings to the island and the complex and rich history behind them. There isn't any other place like the Haiku stairs in the world, and to tear them down would be to disrespect everything that came before them that contributed to their creation.

Please keep the Haiku Stairs. The Haiku Stairs are a legend here. Only the brave attempt them. And when completed, it's the ultimate accomplishment. Sure, safety restrictions should be implemented but that would just improve the safety and comfort of those able to complete them. I assure you that even if you put a entry fee in place to pay for the improvements, soooo many people would still go. Please keep the beauty of the Haiku Stairs. Mahalo.

hawaii is one of my favorite places on earth. it is a absolutely stunning place. the haiku stairs is in my opinion one of the prettiest places on earth, so why tear them down and hold people back from experiencing such a beautiful sight. they are called the stairs to heaven because it is so beautiful. also very likely a place people go to pray and worship. i believe you should not take them down because it is a special place to many people and a place to see some of the most beautiful sights of this world

These stairs have been there for many years, and they have history. The US navy built a radio station at the top and used these stairs to send radio signals. Even though it got closed down, it doesn't mean it should be torn down. This is an amazing sight, and many others think so too. There's more to this place than just stairs, it's spiritual and lifting. Not everything has to get torn down because people want to do it, it should motivate you to figure out a different way to keep the people happy. Too many landmarks are getting torn down and their history. Haiku stairs shouldn't get torn down.

I did a lot of research on the stairs when planning a trip, and I talked to so many amazing people on the phone who guide people up this mountain. It is never described as a hike; rather it is described as a spiritual experience, an adventure, and a life changer. If they were left and made legal, there would be less issues and less safety hazards. I do not live on the island (yet) but I know how much the people love and respect their āina, this included.

The Haiku stairs have been on my bucket list for forever. They are one of the reasons (if not the most important one) that I want to visit your beautiful country. I've hiked a lot while travelling and this hike is without one of the most spectacular ones I haven't done yet. The stairs attract people from all over the world. It would be a shame to lose such a powerful landmark. Kind regards from Belgium.

The stairway to heaven is like the Pali Lookout, the Chinaman Hat, the Laie Point, it is a place on the island for that I love to show to all my visitors when we drive around the island. As we drive through the H3 tunnel, I tell them to hold their breath until the end, when we come out in the other end I tell them to look for the stairs. The Haiku Stairs is part of the Oahu history. A sight to see, history of the antennas and bunker on the top. It is just unbelievable the money that would be used to remove it instead of utilizing that amount to improve the city's pipes and water treatment.

Since I was a child, I have always dreamed of making it to the top of the stairs. I have wished and prayed for the day that they become legal to hike. As my dad was stationed in Guam and Hawaii, my family has spent plenty of time in Hawaii and it feels like a second home to us. It will be utterly devastating to see the votes in favor of removing the stairs, as they are a staple to the island of O'ahu. I understand that illegal trespassing of the stairs disrupts residents, and that costs to maintain and monitor the stairs are high; However, I do not believe removing the stairs is the answer to these issues. Maintenance on the stairs to make them safe to be opened to the public can resolve those issues while also leaving the iconic stairs to be part of the island- a part that many people dream of seeing. People trespass to hike, or take the long (more dangerous) back route to the top of the stairs because they are worth the risk- it is named the "stairway to heaven" for a reason. They are a beautiful icon of the island and removing the stairs removes a part of the island. Please consider preserving the history and icons of the island and visiting other ideas that solve the issues the stairs have brought. Removal is not the answer.

It's unfortunate that it seems like the local authorities and a few unhappy residents are driven to remove the stairs. It's such a unique hike/thing and could be turned into another draw and source of income for Hawaii and the community. Let alone a piece of history preserved. Once gone, it's not coming back. We should work to preserve it and manage it, not destroy it.

I don't have any professional arguments or statistical evidence, and I currently don't even live on 'Oahu. However, looking back on my highschool years in Hawai'i, climbing the Haiku Stairs was one of the most amazing experiences throughout my residence on the island where I got to experience the beautiful nature in the middle of the island without having to go on a massive hike that would be too difficult for the average person.

The Haiku Stairs is an invaluable relic left behind that speaks to the history of not only the Hawaiian islands but that of the United States and US Navy as a whole! Although it is no longer used as intended during World War II, it is what's left of those who have toiled, served, and died for the preservation of the freedom we all enjoy today! Rather than see this historic landmark as a nuisance it should be revered as a standing testament that victory can come even in the darkest hours.

I support keeping the Haiku stairs but transferring them out of The board of water supply ownership. If they were transferred for Hawaii residents and tourists to hike this could be an alternative. There could be enforcement of fines below and on the stairs and hiking permits could be issued weekly at a limited capacity to Hawaii residents and tourists at an increased entry rate. Increased enforcement of violations should make residents happy, and allowing people to hike the stairs. This should provide long term profits for the state and allow residents to enjoy the stairs. It makes more sense to issue permits than to spend the money to tear them down as the structure already exists and is extremely unique.

The stairs should not be torn down, rather we should try to improve it and make it safer for all people to enjoy. This was one of my favorite things I have done in Hawaii. The stairs are very popular on social media. If you were to make this an official tourist spot and even charge an entrance fee then there would be money to maintain or improve the stairs. Please don't tear it down. The views from the top are something that I will remember for the rest of my life.

The Haiku Stairs are an important historical fixture to the island and community. Their removal would be a disservice to the community and island's history at the expense of critical state budget spending. Additionally, a project such as this would inevitably bring additional environmental damage and erosion from the increased foot traffic and material movement.

I am stridently in favor of preserving the Haiku Stairs. The stairs have a unique history and are an important part of US military history in Hawaii. They are also part of the local lore and add a special air of mystique to the island of Oahu. The stairs could also provide a significant economic boon to the community if they were open to the public. They should have been made publicly accessible. Perhaps we need a "Haiku State Park" with a fee-pay admission system to climb the stairs. Regardless of whether or not the stairs are open/accessible, they deserve to be preserved. Please don't trash this historic landmark!

I'm against removing the Haiku stairs because I believe it's apart of Hawaii state history. And the engineering it must have taken to build such a structure in such a place back then is something to appreciate as wel. I can understand that it's been a huge liability for the bws for awhile now but that's because nothing has been done to make it NOT a liability. Managed access is very much possible and if I had the money myself, I'd take it upon myself to put that together. Building a parking lot back there wouldn't be an issue as far as space goes, a release form of liability is common with anything like this, and for extra precautions.. you could put everyone hiking it into harnesses and have them clip into every section to insure that they don't fall. With managed access also means that those that are working at the bottom can insure that everyone is prepared for the hike with shoes, water, snacks, and etc. This would be a game changer to the Haiku Stairs. I hope you consider not removing them for the sake of our community. Mahalo, Matt

I urge the authority to keep the stairs. It has been a dream for me to go to Hawaii and climb up those stairs of heaven. Me and my BFF had planned this for our bucket list for years and I really don't want these stairs to be removed. We know putting a new one will take years to even have a plan ready, and then years to get a budget and then will be halted for somehow going over budget. That's how every re construction works. Please keep the way it is. I really want to go there with my best friend as we had planned ,but we are not old enough yet.

I believe that this particular place should be saved and protected. I have not been to the Haiku Stairs, but have always wished and will go there some day. This place brings peace, happiness and wellness to everyone around the world, to take something like that away makes you really wonder what people really care about in this world. Taking this beautiful thing away seems a little selfish. I pray that you all strongly consider to not take these stairs down and allow the world to seek out some beautiful adventures in this place! May God be with you in your decision.

As a visitor to the state of Hawaii, I was hoping to see the stairs, at a minimum. I think many visitors would be happy to pay a permit fee for the privilege of experiencing the hike, all while generating income for the region and preventing trespassing on private property for those who choose to illegally hike the stairs. I hope you'll reconsider removal.

The Ha'ikū Stairs has been a place of transformative power for decades - changing countless lives since it was built. The mountain peak they climb, Pu'ukeahiakahoe, has a magical effect on souls - and is exactly the influence we need in civilization during this critical point in earth's history! For the State of Hawaii, managed access can be a revenue generator, rather than a liability. Removing or relocating the stairs creates more exposure for the State. If the stairs are moved or destroyed, people will still climb Pu'ukeahiakahoe via a hazardous route (Moanalua Valley Trail). There have been countless rescues of inexperienced hikers on Moanalua Valley Trail and the surrounding ridges of the KST. There has been only one death on the Ha'ikū Stairs since it was built in 1942. That was a heart attack in 2006 - a McDonald's issue. The phenomenal engineering and impressive track record makes the Ha'ikū Stairs the safest ridge hike in Hawaii. The stairs also eliminate erosion caused by thousands of footsteps. Moanalua Valley Trail is alarmingly eroded, whereas Ha'ikū Stairs shows zero erosion. The steel steps take all the abuse and leave the mountain intact and preserved. With managed access, the neighborhood nuisance can be easily eliminated as outlined extensively in Friends of Ha'ikū Stairs proposals. There is so much heart in the walls of that building up there. So many tears have been shed on that mountain. So many stories of a day on Pu ukeahiakahoe that forever changed the way people see their life. The staircase is not only historic monument and a national treasure, it is a spiritual treasure beyond words. I am forever changed by this hike, it has allowed me to realize what this life really is. And those stairs will always keep me coming back to Hawaii, for as long as they stay.

My friend, her husband, my husband and I have been talking about doing the long awaited dream hike up the Stairway to Heaven for awhile now but could never really find the time to go. Despite it being dangerous and "illegal", it is a glory destination for anyone. I've seen the pictures and I've read the amazing stories of how beautiful the view is, I wanted to see it for myself. Due to covid-19, that isn't happening anytime soon, but hopefully later this summer. If the stairs are removed, not only will I loose hope of going up there myself to see the beauty this island is but so will everyone else who lives here and comes to visit. It would be a shame to see such a beautiful opportunity and journey hike be taken away from those who enjoy it the most. They call it the Stairway to Heaven for a reason, please don't take it away. Thank you.

On my trip to Hawaii, I had the BEST experience hiking the back way of Haiku Stairs, and it was by far my favorite part of Oahu. I think the stairs should not be removed, as it is so so unique to the island, and this could be a good opportunity to rebuild or fix parts of the stairs so it's more safe. Please keep the Haiku stairs!!

My name is Meghan Reichhold. I would just like to say that I personally have been a huge fan of the stairs for years since I first even heard of them. I saw pictures and knew it was something I'd die to do before I leave this earth. The only problem is I live in California. I believe the stairs is apart of the culture in Hawaii and would be detrimental to tear it down. Please consider!

The Haiku Stairs are not only historical, but magical. They are a staple of Oahu and surrounding Hawaiian Islands. People from all over the world have hiked these stairs to a life changing moment and unforgettable memory at the top. Destroying something like would be tragic and irreversible. There have been few tragedies that have come from the Haiku stairs in comparison to the legal back way. Many other hikes on the island prove to be far more dangerous with multiple fatalities. This hike is safe because of the stairs and removing them would cause more tragedy and harm. The people that want these stairs removed are the neighboring developments and with some common sense regulations of the stairs put in place, this could be eliminated and even help the state bring in revenue. There are many options before destroying these stairs and this amazing hike. This is a gift of nature that noone should be allowed to take away. Please truly take into consideration the magnitude of this decision and come to a compromise that works for both sides. Thank you!

The stairs should stay. These stairs represent history on the island, and just like the preserved Polynesian history or Pearl Harbour this history should remain in the mountains. These stairs are not easily accessible, therefore alot of effort and funds will be required to remove them. This funding should be put towards other important projects on the island (perhaps climate change mitigation strategies) benefiting the island in years to come. The stairs do no harm, they sit peacefully in the mountains, and the residents are grateful the remain as a mystery in the mountains.

A couple years ago my husband and I did the legal way to the stairway to heaven. It took 10 hours! Once we got to the top the views were absolutely breathtaking. Of course, we wanted to snap a couple photos of us on the stairs because they look so cool and are a part of history. Please do not take down the stairs! They are a little bit of adventure left in this world.

The removal of the the Haiku Stairs will be a decision of great regret. The views of natural beauty has attracted many visitors and many wish to come enjoy the experience of the Haiku Stairs. I hope this decision will be opposed as the consequences of the stairs removal will be devastating to a great multitude. Please keep our planet's beautiful views intact. We do not own this planet.

I have been stationed here for over 3 years and still have not seen the top of this highest point in Oahu. When I was a kid my family took us to the islands for vacation and I still remember climbing those stairs before the were closed to the public. Never have I seen something so magical and so incredible climbing stairs into the clouds and then to reach the top with my family to stand in the heavens and view Oahu from that point. It's the most incredible thing I've ever seen. Please do not tare them down, please preserve them and open them up to the public so we don't have to illegally climb through people's homes to view this magical place, thank you.

The stairs have historical significance. I feel they are as wondrous as the seven wonders of the world. Oahu is a mecca for hiking tourism. We need to capitalize on this. Monitor the stairs, have hikers sign waivers, charge local residents $20 a climb, tourists $100. This will pay for the upkeep and maintenance and stimulate the local economy. It will help local businesses tremendously. I am for re routing the entrance to Windward Community College's parking lot. Aloha.

These stairs are a world treasure. They are a destination spot and are a bucket list item for many travelers who desire to experience the magic of Hawaii. The haiku stairs are a HUGE reason I want to travel to Hawaii & know a large number of people who also want to. I would pay to go on these & would gladly go even if I needed to apply for a permit to travel on them - similarly to how national parks do this. It would be a tragedy if they were taken down.

Please do not tear down the stairs. Tearing the stairs down would result in a loss of Oahu history. It is one of the most beautiful places I have ever seen. By making the stairs legal to climb residents in the area would not be disrupted by those seeking to climb the stairs. Additionally, the city could have people sign a release waiver and charge a fee to climb the stairs which could go towards maintaining the stairs and creation of a parking area. Excess money would be left over for other improvements on Oahu. I would gladly pay up to $100 to climb the stairs and I do not think I'm alone.

Hiking the Haiku stairs is an unbelievable experience. The stairs should become a historical landmark, repaired, and commercialized. The government could make up the cost to repair the stairs easily if they legalized the hike and charged tourists to take them up and down the stairs.

The friends I've made along the way and being able to admire the true beauty of the island. I write in support of removing the Haiku Stairs. I believe the prudent decision would be to remove the stairs completely. The stairs are a serious liability for the City and County of Honolulu and the Board of Water Supply as many people illegally traverse the stairs every year, some get injured, and some go missing. The stairs have become a popular destination for social media enthusiasts, and it's gotten out of control. I am a resident of the Castle Hills community and moving the entrance to our neighborhood would be detrimental to all residents. Many tourists use the stairs and do not respect the 'aina or the community. They leave rubbish, make noise at late night and early morning hours, and increase the crime and theft in the area. The entrance to the stairs are, at least for now, guarded by a security officer. However, if the entrance was moved to our neighborhood, there would be no one to guard the stair entrance. This would mean our quiet neighborhood would experience an influx of trespassers, who will undoubtedly bring litter and problems. Those who want the stairs can find other hikes and other views. There is no benefit to the neighborhood that needs to bear the burden of housing the stairs, and no benefit to the community at large. Please remove the stairs. It has become a trendy, dangerous tourist destination, it does not - in any way - benefit the economy, and it is a huge problem for the neighborhood. Thank you for considering the thoughts and positions of community members.

These stairs are a landmark of this area and are a dream to visit for many people, me included. This is a top destination for me in Hawaii and without it I may be less inclined to visit at all. I know I speak for many people in saying that it would be heartbreaking to have these stairs taken down.

Years ago I had the privilege of stepping onto this beautiful trail via the Haiku stairs and through the experience not only did I get to see the beauty of this trail and the history that lays here, but I had the amazing privilege to do so through safer means on the Haiku stairs. When I took the path, at no point did I ever fear for my life, as a matter of fact, I felt safer than I ever would have if I had gone the "legal" way, which has no ramps, no stairs, and no handles, leading people to their eminent death if not done correctly. I believe the stairs should remain in place. More people need to have the opportunity to see the top of this mountain while doing so Through safer means such as the Haiku stairs.

These stairs are a historical piece of the Hawaiian culture. There is absolutely no need to tear them down if anything the state should work on ways to fix and preserve them. A spiritual and one of a lifetime experience should not be taken away from the land and the people of the land.

I hiked the legal and long hike to reach the top of the stairs, and it was during that hike that I FELL IN LOVE with Hawaii and the beauty of the island. The views, the experience, the adventure was life changing and I Hope the stairs stay there. I understand that there is a safety issue, and i understand if in the future you may increase security or penalty for being on the stairs, but I feel like there so much history in those stairs and they shouldn't be removed. It's a landmark that few have seen but dream of seeing. It's beautiful. And it's a part of Oahu.

The stairs stand to represent an important part of Hawaii's History. I appreciate they are delapidated and aged, but rather than tear them down or leave them to rot, why not Invest in them, like those who defended to state in the times of darkness, and what the world invest back. Invest in repair/rebuilding them or build a set of stairs next to them as a way of telling the story and tourists will willingly pay to climb them and let them become a light in people's lives. Keep the stairs

One of the reasons I wish to travel and explore Hawaii is the amazing pictures and views from the Haiku Stairs. Hawaii is on my bucket list and I have been saving up to make a trip there. The Haiku Stairs provide one of the most awe-inspiring views and experiences one can find on Oahu. Creating safe and appropriate access to the stairs would create the ability for people to experience such a beautiful, raw representation of Oahu, their people, and their geography.

I have never been able to hike the stairs but it is my dream to one day be able to. The stairs should be restored. Not shut down. Hikers who do it should know the type of danger they put themselves in when they try to ascend and descend. It is a beauty of the world. Should we close down Mount Everest because it is dangerous? The stairs can be used to make money for the government. There can be entrance and parking fees and hikers can be asked to sign a waiver when hiking.

What you're probably not considering or don't know is that there is currently 6 ways to reach the summit of Stairway including the stairs. If the goal of removal is to keep people off of the mountain I can tell you that's impossible. If your goal is to keep people out of Haiku Village/ Valley then maybe that will work but it's a bandaid fix and here's why. Look back at Deadman's catwalk it was jack hammered out which may have stopped people from going to that spot to get their Instagram photo, but it still doesn't stop people from accessing the mountain. There's still holes in their fences on the access road, and people still trespass on the daily to get up there to see the view. Don't listen to all the people supporting the stairs because they hiked it illegally once. I fully understand the problem. Trash, trespassing on private/ government land, erosion, parking, waking up the neighborhood, paying security BUT all the problems listed above come from the BWS failure to properly manage the land and it doesn't stop here. Kalihi Iceponds is the same situation, Waihe'e Valley. Why does the BWS think putting a gate in front of something special and saying off limits is the solution? There's clearly something in common about how special all of these locations are. Stairway holds so much history, and it's personally a special place to me and many. There's also few people who know and understand Ko'olau hiking as well as I do so if there is someone who should speak in support or keeping the stairs I believe it should be me. Out of all this I don't know what the solution is which is probably what you thought I was getting at. However, removal just because a few houses on Oahu and the BWS are looking for a quick fix is not the solution. I also don't think it should be open to the public either because tourism will promote it like a fun easy hike, it will attract the wrong crowds meaning unfit people who don't take care of the Aina. As we all know Diamond Head is the most rescued hike for unfit hikers now imagine what would happen if Stairway was open. Check out this quote from the Honolulu Star Advertiser. "Tourists flock to the main trail up Diamond Head, one of the state's top attractions. Over five years, the Honolulu Fire Department rescued three times as many hikers from Diamond Head State Monument as from the outlawed "Stairway to Heaven" on Oahu's Windward Side." Perhaps a limited permit system is the solution like many trails throughout the nation. Look at Half Dome in Yosemite, Mt. Whitney in California, and the Enchantments in Washington. All function just fine under a limited quota and it generates revenue to maintain the trail. It shouldn't be advertised as an easy hike for everyone, but I can personally tell you that if you're trying to remove the stairs to keep people away it won't keep me away. Remember without the stairs there is still 5 other access trails! It's current situation is ashamed, but it's not all hikers to blame the residents fall into the blame as well. They have loud dogs that bother other neighbors when people are just trying to have a quiet hike, one neighbors fence punctured a mans neck, and I've personally been threaten with a gun before by a man who I choose not to report. Something needs and can happen to better assist both sides and I hope you come to that solution. A permit system might be the best option.

Insert Written Testimony

Please do not remove the Haiku Stairs/Stairway to Heaven. I had the opportunity to hike this trail in 2014 and it remains the most amazing hike I've ever done in my life. I believe having hikers purchase permits would be a great way to support maintaining the stairs. I would love to be able to hike them again and enjoy the beautiful Windward sunrise over Kaneohe Bay. Please preserve the legacy of this beautiful hike and honor the work of the WW2 soldiers' hard work of installing the stairs. Aloha.

The haiku stairs should not be removed because it's a place many people not only that live in Hawaii visit but also many tourists do. They not only go to experience a beautiful view but they go and use these stairs as an activity/exercise. People also go to enjoy some time with their family. These stairs provide so much to the community. Please don't remove the stairs!

Keep the stairs!!! The stairs are known worldwide on the island of Oahu. If they need to be fixed, let's make it so people who want to hike have to pay, just like with diamond head or haunama bay. There are so many "do at your own risk" things on island. Keep the stairs! Keep the spirit of adventure alive

I have dreamed of climbing these stairs since the first season of Magnum PI - I would gladly pay an entry fee to create a safe and secure stairway with limited permits sold each day. Charge a local and tourist single use permit amount for improvement and safety.

People need access to natural beauty like what the stairs provide. The type of inspiration it can provide cannot be replicated. Yes it is dangerous, but so many other things of our every day life are dangerous and yet we do not get rid of them. Some of them are entirely man-made creations. Danger is simply an inherent part of human life.

The stairs are such a meaningful place for me. As a tax paying resident, I come from Moanalua. I don't even park at the trail, I run to the trail! I never go through the Kaneohe side to respect the residents there. By going through the Moanalua valley ridge, I get to appreciate the trails and also love the stairs for my making outdoor workout. I believe that we should charge tourists for entrance fees to use the trails, fine those who litter and as a resident im willing to pay for an annual pass to help for costs or maintaining the stairs. Please do not remove the stairs.

Hiking, being outdoors is a gift that Mother Earth has provided since the beginning of time... there are so many limitations and rules in the world. The Stairs represent freedom in this world of limitations. There are other hikes that can be dangerous and scary. Eagles Landing in Zion... not to highlight the tragedies but there is risk everyday in the decisions one makes. I have never hiked the stairs. I have however, TRIED to hike to the top via the legal way, and there were so many areas that were potentially life threatening. Skill. Strength. Perseverance these were all necessary attributes I got to a point that was questionable and I decided to turn back. I made a responsible decision. As individuals we need to take responsibility for our own actions. Being able to challenge ones self, to explore, to soar is not just a gift, but a right, as well. Most members of the outdoor community are thoughtful and respectful of our open lands. I feel it is our right to have these hikes, these lands, these STAIRS available to explore and enrich our lives.

The Haiku Stairs are a gem - probably one of the better hikes in the world. This Hawaiian opportunity should not be removed because politicians and officials do not have the stomach to enact a solution. The opinions of a few local land owners should not out weigh the access of this shared resource - particularly as government has the means to arbitrate the situation and find a solution. Finding a win win solution is the job of government. Don't shirk your responsibilities.

Such an iconic part of Oahu! I support renovating these stairs to make them safer, and then limiting the number of people able to use them every day. If they do this for the Inca Trail in Peru, why can't you do this in Hawaii? It would be a magnificent experience for tourists and generate a lot of money.

In 2018, my daughter and I specifically visited Hawaii to hike the Moanalua Ridge to see the Haiku Stairs. It was an adventure we will never forget! We stayed over a week in Waikiki and spent the rest of our time relaxing and hiking some more. The Haiku Stairs are a bigger tourist draw than you might realize, and we feel it would be a huge mistake removing them. We understand that ground access is prohibited and illegal hikers are a huge nuisance to the local residents, but that doesn't mean have to be torn down as long as a legal trail access exists. Please, PLEASE save the stairs!! They will provide adventures for many generations of enthusiastic hikers, young and old, to come!! Mahalo!!!!

I strongly oppose removal of the Haiku Stairs. For those who have experienced climbing the stairs it is a magical, life changing experience that just adds to the beauty and mystique of Hawaii. I strongly suggest that the stairs be refurbished and accessible to the people. A reasonable charge and limited number of hikers per day would assure it is safe and profitable experience for those involved. There is no other experience like the stairs on Earth. Please don't let this amazing experience be taken away.

Please keep and open stairs to the public. They are not only a part of history, but offer a unique activity and view. People come from all over the world to visit Oahu, and the stairs are on the top of their list. Tourism is needed right now, and could be a great way to increase revenue in the future.

I support removal of the Ha'ikū Stairs. It taxes our resources of first responders for residents. It will not be manageable if deemed a public park/trail with the amount of tourists already seen on state sanctioned trails. Give back our sense of place as residents of Kāne'ohe by freeing us of the constant rescues of ill-prepared hikers, the trespassing on private properties and overflow of parking in our neighborhoods.

Please keep the stairs. My friend at skydive Hawaii, whom was to be skydive instructor passed away. Evan. (Accident in Kauai). He would hike haiku stairs while I lived in Kauai and I had never met him. Just my friends did. The stairs are all I have left of him today. He will never get to be my skydive instructor like we planned and I stopped my plan to skydive solo once he passed. The hike haiku stairs was his favorite. It is my only connection to still get to know him and be able to be a part of that energy. If you take the stairs down, you will take away souls trying to find a higher place in this world. Please keep them. They belong.

This is an absolutely beautiful hike. Please do not tear them down. Instead of fighting to keep people off of them, let them sign a waiver and climb at their own risk. This is the best hike that I have been to in the entire world...it deserves to remain! I did it twice before all the money was spent to upgrade. I have always been respectful to the community. Please do not remove the stairs! I came last year to Hawaii right from Romania(Europe) and Haiku stairs was one of the main reasons I've chosen Hawaii. That place made me feel so alive and now it's my favourite place on Earth. You cannot find anything like that anywhere else in the world. Please just leave them as they are. I would like to come back to Hawaii in the future just to experience that feeling of being there again.

These stairs are a landmark. I follow many social media accounts who post about Oahu. The pictures they share of views from the stairs are wonderful and a great tourism draw. The stairs are a true adventurers' attraction, even if we never actually climb them. They have a mystique; I would include them in top 5 attractions on Oahu (even though they are not open to the public).

Hawaii has always held a dear place in my heart and having lived in Australia all my life unable to visit frequently. There are things is still cherish and would love to see and do. Thea stairs are part of history, tourism and you're economy. Take away the stairs you'll take away a bucket list destinations for many international tourists and locals alike. You're suppose to preserve history and tear it down. Monitor and and care for these things. It's and incredible walk if love to be able to do for years to come, bring my future family on and reminisce on a time that was. These stairs have been there for years and locals do have a say dont misunderstand but those stairs have been there for years and in recent years have only become and issue to white privileged and obnoxiousness. We are caretakers for the past and the future. Please don't tear down history. I'm sure there are many possible outcomes to keep locals happy and have a lockout law where the nearby streets are kept only for locals. You employ a full time guard to watch over the entrance maybe keep a guard to monitor the area for people doing the wrong thing when you decide it's not wise to pull the stairs down. I hope you make the right decisions Kind regards Reece!!!

I was recently in Hawaii and gig the hike from the back of the mountain to the top of the stairs. It was breathtaking and one of the coolest things I've ever done. I would love one day to be able to climb the actual stairs. It's not something that you can do anywhere else and for anyone that likes to explore the world and see unique things, that's a huge draw. It should be something that is marketed towards tourists. Charge a small fee, have people sign a liability waiver and use the money for the maintenance. It would be a huge attraction.

There is nothing like the Haiku Stairs in the entire world. It offers a great value of history and heritage to the island of Oahu and the state of Hawaii that cannot be resembled or imitated. I understand the safety concerns for people/tourists going up and down the stairs as well as the neighboring residents, but I believe there is a proper way to make everything workout in the safest manner possible while preserving the stairs. My suggestion would be to issue permits and charging for every hiker planning to climb the stairs, provided a guide will be going up/down with them. The guide can be employed by the board of water supply. With the vast number of people wanting to experience what the Haiku Stairs can offer, the revenue from the permits/charges should cover the costs of maintenance, safety, salary, etc. The schedules and strict compliance rules/safety policies of the climbs should be implemented. I firmly believe something like this could work and is a win-win situation for both parties. Mahalo.

Please don't tear down the Haiku Stairs. I first wanted to see the stairs for my first trip to Oahu back in 2014, but was not able to, due to bad weather. These stairs were one of the sole reasons I returned to the island last year. My girlfriend and I were finally able to hike the Moanalua Middle Ridge Trail and to reach the peak, and see the stairs while looking over the other side of the island was breathtaking. It is one of my best experiences and I would literally do it again. I do not condone the trespassing of property or the tragedies that may have occurred. I would support access being limited to the lower parts of the stairs, or signs being posted of the possible dangers of climbing the stairs. For example, at Angel's Landing in Zion National Park, they've posted the number of deaths as it is in the hiker's discretion whether it is worth the risk and to waive liability. Is it not possible to do the same for the stairs? I mean the city has already spent $875,000 just to repair the stairs in 2003. The money already spent would be in vain if these stairs are torn down. I do not support these stairs being torn down as it is one of the many unique features, sights, and experiences, your beautiful island has to offer. Those stairs are the reason I look forward to coming back to the island multiple times, as it means a lot to me. Thank you

The Haiku Stairs is an amazing experience that showcases and enhances the beauty of Oahu. With picturesque views and an ideal location investment should be made into preserving this hike and, if anything, improving the existing stairs. To tear it down would be shameful and very disappointing to all those that enjoy the natural beauty of the Ko'olau

Aloha! As Mayor Kirk Caldwell had mentioned before, this magnificent structure, built by our fine Naval Military forces, had become a very important and well-known landmark, not only for our Hawaii residents, but also for the world of travelers who have come to experience and who are about to experience the Haiku Stairs's magic and beauty, and not to mention, the happiness and satisfactions that our hikers and our residents experience. Because this is truly and worldwide phenomenon, it is one of people's bucket list dreams! And this will and has boosted the island's tourism industry where our economy is mostly based upon. So, therefore, I truly believe that legalizing the entrance and exit to this life haven is going to be more beneficial to our residents and visitors than destroying it because this will also destroy a dream, a motivation, an inspiration, a life's gift to wanderer, a source of income to our tourism industry, and most of all,, a history for our mighty military who also risked their lives building it while, at the same time, have saved lives, literally and figuratively. PLEASE SAVE AND PRESERVE HAIKU STAIRS! Much Mahalo, from one of your long time residents and Veterans. xoxo
Ron P.

The city should be preserving it not destroying it! If the city has concerns of hiker's climbing it because it's unsafe to do so, they should work to preserve the stairs to a safe state and then charge a fee to climb it. More importantly haiku stairs has been part of Oahu's history since the 1940s. It would be a disgrace to destroy it....what's next Pearl harbour ?

The stairs should remain and be opened to the public as an incredible means by which to experience the beauty of Hawaii. Unfortunately the wealthy neighborhood below has so far been successful in restricting access by the public through disgusting means. The wealthy few should not be allowed to restrict everyone else from experiencing this treasure.

The haiku stairs represent fond memories of many, as it is regarded as one of the best hikes in Hawaii. People travel from all around the world to hike it, and would more than likely be willing to pay in order to hike it. Making it a legitimate hike would be far more advantageous as a whole than tearing it down, requiring less funds to do so.

The Haiku stairs are a vital part of the community - and not just for the community. The stairs enchant locals and tourists alike, they encourage people to get out and explore their beautiful surroundings, they give visitors a greater appreciation of the island's diverse beauty, I could go on and on about the values of the stairs. The removal of the stairs would be a grievous loss that would be looked upon as great mistake - by many now and by most all in the future. For these reasons, I oppose the removal of the stairs.

I object to the teardown of this unique, historical, vantage hike. 1000's of people, of all ages, levels & sizes have enjoyed this hike for as long as I can remember. There are other hikes, i.e. Half Dome, in Yosemite....that once a person has experienced on his/her own, has a rare connection to Earth & life, that cannot be put into words. This hike is one of those hikes. Please do not take away this from the people.

I was lucky enough to visit Hawaii in October 2019 and see the beautiful Haiku Stairs in person. There is a great amount of history in the stairs, as well as opportunity if the stairs are kept. Outdoor enthusiasts from all over the world want to visit Hawaii and see/hike these stairs in person. I hope that one day it becomes safe and legal to hike the stairs as I would absolutely return to Hawaii (I live in Arizona) for the chance to hike them. Please do NOT remove the stairs!

I personally have never been to Hawaii but greatly plan to one day in the next few years of course to see its beauty but mainly to witness and walk the haiku stairs "the stairway to heaven" I know just like myself this is a goal of mine and the main reason I wish to travel to Hawaii many of my friends have been able to witness its beauty and I would be crushed like many of us who have yet to witness it be taken down. Of course the opinion of one person may seem dumb and not a reason to keep it but I know many people feel the same way as I do. Just wanted to hop on here and express my passion of the haiku stairs and in hopes one day soon get to witness it for myself.

I'm from Australia and have visited Hawaii many times, I'm due back in November this year, but due to the virus I can't leave my country. As soon as I can I will be back. I have travelled many places around the world, but none are as beautiful as Hawaii, these stairs (when repaired and safe) allow visitors and locals to see the magic of Hawaii. They must be repaired, it's a tourist attraction like no other, have a daily limit if you must that people can apply for a place online anytime of year so they can plan ahead, and charge a small fee for the upkeep of the stairs US$5. People need places with so much history like this to remain, we want to learn that history and make new memories of it.

The Haiku Stairs are one of the most unique and beautiful attractions on O'ahu. I have never experienced such thrill taking the trail up the back way to reach the top of the stairs after a grueling but rewarding hike. It is upsetting to know that others may not have the same opportunity that I did to see the stairs for themselves. The stairs hold a lot of history, and it would be a shame for them to be torn down - they are the reason I travelled to Hawaii and I will remember the day I stood at the top for the rest of my life.

I personally am in love with Hawaii and how diverse the environments and ecosystems that reside there are. I believe that these stairs allow not only locals but also people traveling to Hawaii from all around the world to be able to experience some of the magic that nature has to offer. This may sound cheesy but hikes and trails like these are what motivate people to care about the world they are living in because it helps them realize just how amazing earth is and leads many to change their perspective on how they should be treating it. As someone who absolutely loves Hawaii and has had it on their bucket list for years to be able to hike such amazing stairs I truly hope that for the sake of anyone wishing to get to experience what these stairs have to offer I truly hope you think long and hard about this decision before moving forward and that you value the public's opinion just as much as you value your own.

My position on the matter is not one-dimensional. I consider myself an avid hiker and have hiked to the stairs via several routes. As things stand right now, I oppose the illegal use of the stairs as it disturbs the residents in the area, and I also oppose the "legal" use of the stairs via Moanalua Valley because it's overuse is causing sustainability issues such as erosion and the disruption of plant life. However, it is a well-known attraction and people travel from all over the world to see them! This is great for tourism and for the economy in Hawaii. I would hate to see the stairs get torn down, as I do consider them a significant landmark. However, I do think the problems they pose could be easily fixed. If you repaired and thereafter maintained the stairs, you could easily implement a permit system and charge for use of the stairs, which would also make it easy to regulate their use (amount of people, time of day, etc.). I'm sure you've thought of this, but aside from the initial investment, I don't see many cons. It would not only help the environment, make the stairs safer, and appease the residents in the surrounding area, but would also improve the economy, create jobs, and bring some cash flow into your organization/state. Thank you for taking the time to read my testimony.

Some things hold a certain essence and beauty to them, this is one of those things. This is a piece of history like no other and taking the stairs down would truly be a shame. I hope you guys come to your senses and realize whatever ideas you have that make it seem so bad or dangerous it's not. There are a million trails in Hawaii far from Mormons dangerous. Your doing nothing other than destroying something beautiful. Whatever goal or outcome your trying to achieve by taking them down is truly unnecessary. It's called the stair way to heaven for a reason. Because it's the closest thing to heaven. If anything make it safe so the world floods to walk through heaven

I came all the way from Germany last year to hike and see the Haiku Stairs. It took us 6 hrs to hike through the valley facing west of the stairs. We did so in order to not violate the regulations of not walking up the stairs. And this hike was worth every second especially the end when we first saw the old radio station and finally the stairs. I live quite close to the European Alps and I can just tell you: over here we'd not remove such a beautiful landmark. We'd promote it to become a protected area. Why don't you guys use it as a tourist thing to raise a small entrance fee or something like that? Don't get me wrong, I don't wanna dig into your local Hawaiian decisions, I'd just really regret a removal of the stairs from a foreigners point of view. You'd be losing one major reason for foreigners to visit Oahu.

Please do not remove the haiku stairs, which adds to the view and beauty of another nearby hike. It has been a part of some very outstanding pictures. Also I believe since the stairs have been there for so long the animals and insects along the ridge have made the stairs apart of their home. Which removing the stairs could mean ruining the ecosystem along the ridge.

I just moved to the island in the past year and before I moved to Oahu, the stairway to heaven was the only hike I'd heard of and knew I wanted to experience the magic!! I haven't been able to yet because I want to make sure the weather is good enough to be able to hike the back (legal) way. But if the stairs were fixed up a little bit instead of torn down, the state could even charge a $10-20 parking fee and tons of people could go and the state could make money off of the attraction. Or please leave the way they are and continue to allow people to hike the back way. They're so beautiful!

There has been no expenditure on the part of the city and water board in litigation or settlements involving if the stairs. The stairs are not a liability risk. They can easily be reopened under supervision. The cost to tear down the stairs is massive and completely unnecessary. Why pour money down the drain to tear down one of the most beautiful sights to see in Hawaii? Instead of wasting that money, spend it effectively to manage the safety and preserve and promote the cultural and ecology found there.

Millions of hikers all over the world strive to hike these beautiful stairs. Gift the stairs to an organization that can manage the property and charge admission. Tearing down the stairs is like tearing down Iolani palace or Bishop Museum. It belongs to Oahu history, we want to revere it, not demolish!!!!!!!

I traveled from NZ in 2018 this was my second time to Hawaii. During this trip we decided to hike up to the top of Haiku the stairs the back way up. This was one of the best things I've ever done. The views were amazing, to hear you are considering to pull down the stairs is heart breaking. I really hope you reconsider and vote to preserve the stairs so many others can experience the beauty this walk has to offer. This isn't only just a set of stairs it's a piece of History.

Hello, please reconsider tearing down the Haiku Stairs. Instead please look at rebuilding them and opening o the public. This would create revenue and more jobs in Oahu, much like Zions angel landing in Utah. Trbulding the stairs and then making an online reservation system would allow the island to share the beauty of Oahu, make revenue for the island, and create jobs.

The Haiku Stairs are part of WW2 history and Hawaiian history and culture. The Haiku Stairs draw thousands of hikers every year interested in experiencing animal life, native plants, as well as the most amazing views of Oahu, even though they risk a trespassing charge to do so. Instead of tearing them down, how about create an organization that would allow guided hikes to the top of the stairs for a fee? The Stairs are the safest way to gain access the top of the mountain. The Board of Water Supply pays thousand of dollars a year to hire a security guard to try to keep hikers out. Legalizing access to it will solve the illegal hiking and save the city thousands of dollars. Saving the world famous Stairway to Heaven is saving part of Hawaiian history and culture for our future generations.

The haiku stairs represent so much what the spirit of Hawaii is about: sublimity, freedom, getting in touch with the beautiful nature, connecting people and supporting peace. Tearing them down would not only leave a huge gap in the landscape but also make the world lose one of its wonders. Renovate the stairs and make them open to the public with an entrance fee!

The Haiku Stairs are such a big piece of history for O'ahu. I remember first moving here and I spent HOURS researching the history of the stairs because I was and am so fascinated with them. To this day I still find myself going online to find out more about them because I think they're such an important part of history. People spent so much time and money to build them, it would be such a shame to see them go. Tearing down the stairs represents tearing down an important part of history for Hawai'i.

The Haiku stairs must stay. Taking them away would be a grave mistake. The experience of climbing the stairs is sacred to so many people and it would be crushing to see them go. I planned to go this Summer and I would be devastated to have that opportunity taken away from me and many others. Not to forget that taking them away may put people at even more risk because I guarantee that tourists will still attempt the climb. It's best to keep the stairs there and have it regulated.

From what I have heard and seen throughout the years is that the Haiku stairs are a very special place to a lot of people. They represent a sort of freedom and a way to completely escape into nature. Seeing these stairs demolished would truly be heartbreaking to me and so many others out there. Please preserve the stairs so that this beautiful experience can be enjoyed by all. If a legal way is made to access them, the surrounding neighbourhoods will not be effected by hikers the way they have been. It costs so much to remove them, why not just enhance their stability and reopen them? The removal of the Haiku stairs will be a heartbreaking, tremendous loss.

This is such a wonderful piece of history on this stunning island. We are already loosing so much in this world, please preserve one thing in your control that brings so much joy, life, adrenalin to people who need to it most. This isn't a case of tourism or a great social media post. But have you ever been having the worst time in your life and you pull yourself out of the pits of your despair and you challenge yourself and do something amazing. Conquering or knowing you still have the chance to your bucket list and looking out in sheer peace and serenity at the beauty of thr world and the will power of yourself, you just cant recreate those kinds of experiences. In an inexcusably traumatic and heartbreaking year, please just reconsider this decision. Please

I oppose removal of the stairs. Please instead consider managed access to the trail, as was previously supported by the Kaneohe Neighborhood Board. These stairs are such an important and unique part of island history. There are also way more dangerous hikes that pose more of a risk than the stairs. Please reconsider.

Demolishing the stairs would be erasing a piece of history from the island. I'm an Architect from Ohio and up until 4 years ago, I had never heard of the Haiku Stairs until my fiance and I visited the island for the first time. Since then, we were determined to travel back to get the opportunity to hike the infamous ridge. On our third trip back to the islands, we finally got that chance. The anticipation was unbelievable, we both had been looking forward to that day for years. Needless to say it was the best day of my life. We happened to get engaged at the top, which only seemed fittinh. Even after climbing the stairs, we still find ourselves drawn back to them. The stairs have a tremendous lasting impression for those who appreciate and respect them for what they are and symbolize. Demolishing the stairs would be detrimental to the hopes and dreams of so many others wanting to experience the same. We've been to the islands 4 times now and of all the ridge hikes we've done, the stairway by far felt the safest. If the stairs were capitalized on and invested in, it would be wise to charge people to hike the stairs in order to maintain and improve the stairway going forward. Don't let greed and agendas ruin a staple to the island of Oahu. Please save the stairs and use them as a teaching tool that not everything old should be torn down. This should be a revitalization initiative, not one of destruction.

The stairs are part of history. I currently live in Honolulu and even though I've only lived here for a short time it's already clear to me how much the locals value history. Removing the stairs won't be something that can be taken back. Plus it could bring in a lot of money from tourists in a time when especially due to COVID-19 we will need money.

The Haiku Stairs represent a historical and cultural significance to Hawaii. As a Naval Officer, the significance of these stairs to provide access for the Navy to transmit signals and help win the war deems it very appropriate to make this a historical land mark in Hawaii. Additionally as a cultural identity to Hawaii and the island of Oahu, I recommend we keep these stairs in place and place safety features in them or renovate. This is a part of Hawaii's identity and an access to the most beautiful landscape in the world. Let's not take that away.

I would like to submit testimony to the Board of Water Supply Board of Directors regarding Haiku Stairs. My testimony is below or attached. I have seen many pictures of the Haiku Stairs and have enjoyed the amazing views taken from the top as well as along the way. They are a marvel of engineering, as well as a way to safely convey hikers to the top of this beautiful mountain to view gorgeous vistas. I believe that they are prized by thousands of people around the world who have visited them and have fond memories; who have, like myself, added this hike to their "bucket list," or indeed helped to illustrate to many who could not hike their themselves some of the history and beauty of the Hawaiian Island. Please SAVE the Haiku Stairs! Stephen Kimmel MD

I have managed to make two trips to Hawaii. Being fortunate enough to find a biologist to swap housing with me during Christmas I've traveled to Hawaii twice in the past four years. My first trip I studied the Haiku Stairs and without having enough knowledge chose to go over to the big Island. My second trip I research the idea of climbing the stairs. I found a local guide who is very knowledgeable and wanted nothing more than to help people experience climbing the stairs. One of the most intimidating journeys I've made and one of the most rewarding. My investment in the guide was truly one of the smartest things I have done. I saw several people without a guide who were very intimidated. I told them it was their choice as to continue or not. But I did say it would be very rewarding. Being a registered nurse and facing many challenges in my career I have seen many patients that face constant battles. Tomorrow I will travel from my home in Tennessee to the city of Chicago in order to help Covid patients. As I do that and as I make my daily routine I often think back to my Hawaiian journeys. Normally when I travel somewhere I take into account the culture of the area. I try to learn it's history I try to learn the ways of the people to get a full experience of where I am going. The striking beauty of

Hawaii is never more exemplified then by the Haiku Stairs. But the beauty of the people there have always been very resounding in my mind. They're open this has always been a reminder to me with the rest of the world Should use as a model for better human life and humanity to all. With that said I think it would be a huge mistake to remove the stairs and to take a piece of being able to experience the beauty of Hawaii away. Although I will admit the stairs the height is very intimidating the overall safety Is very secure. So if anyone wishes to remove the stairs in Lou of safety remember people will always try to climb a summer they always have. The best option is to give them the safest option which is the stairs. I hope these comments do not fall on deaf ears. I know exactly Exactly what trauma looks like having seen it multiple times in various settings. Safety would be the first key issue. I think your smartest option would be to lease it to someone or a company with the ability to maintain and manage it. Provided you reserve the option to monitor any maintenance in the health and vitality of the stairs. Perhaps the Corps of Engineers would be very applicable to giving advice in regard to regular maintenance and upkeep. That being said the stairs are Maintenance free having been in place multiple years and still very secure. But the time will come when maintenance needs to be done in regard to saving the stairs. Stairs are a remarkable piece of engineering, piece of history and a piece of a way for everyone to share and experience the challenge to the summit. I wish you all well I hope the rest of the world learns of your beautiful culture and your beautiful Waze. It was just two days ago I met a nurse who had been there for three months and decided that was where she was going to retire. I told her that was a great idea because it was the most beautiful place I've been in the world. Having been to multiple destinations around the world my very best to you all Mahalo Steve Bouldin

I am writing on behalf of opposing the removal of the Haiku Stairs. This is a landmark that people from all over Hawai'i and throughout the world come to experience. I do however feel that upkeep and repairs to the stairs are necessary. This is something that I would one day like to take my children to see as my parents have done with me. Please keep the Haiku Stairs alive for future generations to come.

The stairs are well maintained and provide an amazing hiking experience. It seems counterintuitive to destroy something that took a lot of time and money to create. I would prefer if we created a solution outside the box that would satisfy neighbors, residents and tourists- who all use the trail. Generating revenue seems like a reasonable and possible solution. I believe a user fee would be best.

The Haiku stairs are an amazing man created sanctuary to reach one of the most beautiful places on earth. I instead of removing I would rather charge a small fee per person to allow maintenance of the stairs. Creating a donation base to begin restructure versus raiding them down. Making it a national park area, or anything which allows us to contribute to keeping and maintaining the stairs. Earth should be explored and cared for not restrict. Restricting will only promote more curiosity. Please give us options.

The stairway to heaven should not be removed because it is removing beautiful, historical, educational, authentic history of the island of Oahu. The movement to remove the stairs does not show as much as importance as remaining the history and beauty of the Oahu's past shared through the sight of the stairway to heaven. With an island as beautiful and vast as hawaii it should be encouraged by the government to preserve its unique and beautiful landmarks.

I believe the Haiku Stairs should not be removed! Instead of spending millions of dollars and damaging the environment, money could go to repairing the stairs to make them safer. An option would be making them legal with a guided tour which would bring in money for the state and people could enjoy something with a small amount of people. Oahu's tourist attractions are so over crowded with people, and the stairs truly feel like more of an experience than an attraction. Not to mention they are a piece of history that should not be destroyed!

Haiku stairs host so many memories and historical events here in Oahu. This ridge line is arguably one of the most beautiful in the state, and the only other way to access it is far more dangerous than using the stairs. The stairs in their current state are in good shape and are very safe. Removing them would decrease the number of people hiking them, but not eliminate. Us adventurers are willing to take risks to get to the tops of mountains, and by removing the stairs, you would be putting hikers at even greater risk of danger, therefore increasing your liability. Human will and freedom are more powerful than fear. Again, removing the stairs would put you and the hikers at greater risk, please consider an alternate way to open the stairs. Mahalo.

The Haiku Stairs should not be removed. The hike itself is a unique asset to the island of Oahu and helps to provide locals and visitors a chance to explore the islands in a unique way. The State of Hawaii needs to find a legal way to allow safe access to the stairs so that everyone can enjoy the stairs. Due to the popularity of this hike I think that it would be beneficial for the State to set up a system where each person whom climbs the stairs will need to pay an entrance fee of say $10 a person. It is a small piece to pay for an unforgettable lifetime experience atop the Ko'olau mountains.

It's been a few years since I lived on Oahu but one of my favorite memories is tackling the haiku stairs. Oahu (and all the islands) have hidden bunkers, pillboxes, and old WW2 remnants scattered across the landscape and finding and exploring them was one of my favorite things to do. The haiku stairs are a historical landmark and something I look forward to visiting again one day.

Aloha, The Haiku stairs is a staple of Hawaii. Demolishing it would be very sad for locals of Hawaii and Natives. Hawaii is changing so much, it would be nice to have these stairs remain for the future generations. It would be a great idea to fix up the stairs and have daily guided tours for a fee of $5-15, this proposed way would create jobs and create an additional form of income for the state which is desperately needed in the current economy. Please keep the stairs and just fix upon it and monetize it. Hawaii Haiku stairway means a lot to us residents and we would love to keep this sacred place around. Mahalo, Te'Miymah Yodhhewawhe

The stair are a staple of The Hawaiian image worldwide. People come from all over the world to do that hike, similar to the Napali coast. I suggest the stairway to Heaven is regulated the same way the Napali coast is with issued permits. That would provide money to maintain the stairs and provide enforcement.

Just wanted to say few words. You know everybody has dreams. And this is MY DREAM! I wasn't going to hike to stairs, I know it's illegal. But wanted to admire them from underneath. I actually got tickets to visit the island this month, but then I got sick with coronavirus:(so I will have to come different time, and I really want to know that the stairs are still there! Please save the Haiku stairs, the stairs themselves are not dangerous and if operated in the correct manner it can be a great asset to Hawaii and the local community. Coordinate a refurbishment of the stairs and make it safe for the community and have a maximum amount of people who can climb per day so not to erode the mountain and keep peace with the locals.

The haiku stairs represent the beauty that Hawaii has to offer if you're willing to put your sense of adventure to the test. If this was funded publicly, renovated for safety, and then charged for use thereafter, this could be a lucrative opportunity for Hawaii to continue to share its legendary beauty with the world. I personally would be willing to pay $100 for a permit to hike the Haiku stairs.

To tear down the stairs would be to get rid of a part of Hawaii's history. You would not tear down the pillboxes across the island of Oahu so why is it acceptable to tear down other historical structures? Valid, the haiku stairs could be safer, however they also have potential to bring in Revenue for the owner/state of Hawaii, as an avid hiker I have met many people that would pay to just be given the opportunity to hike the stairs without penalty. So why not maintain them an open them with limited public access? Tearing the stairs down only opens opportunity for further trespassing and in a less safe manner- do you really want people hiking haiku without even the stairs as safety?

PLEASE preserve the Haiku Stairs as they currently stand. While I have never personally hiked on the stairs, I attended the University of Hawai'i at Manoa and these stairs always maintained an aura and presence that captivated me. They would truly be devastating to lose. They are a testament to the history on Oahu and unlike anything around the world - special and irreplaceable. The Haiku Stairs should be a source of pride rather than a controversial issue. PLEASE do not remove them.

I`m from germany und in 2010 i`ve been visiting the hawaiian islands. We definitely love the magic of the islands. When back in germany i`ve heard about the stairs and i loved this wonderful views from there. But heard that its forbidden to go there and that they are going to tear them down. I even spend some money for a project of the stairs and really hope the stairs will be saved and it`s possible the visit them in the future. i hope that they will be protected to remember the past. i wish to visit them and see those wonders and show them to my little son and to take some wonderful photos from there of the wonderful island as a nature lover and photographer. Please save them. best regards from Germany

You'd be stupid - inject your veins with Dettol level stupid - to not look at this as see an opportunity. The Haiku Stairs have become world famous, even attracting people to visit Oahu with their beauty from the top of the mountain. I know this, because I was one of those tourists - I'm a British National, living in Korea, that decided to spend about $1500 on a week trip to Hawaii having seen the views from this peak and the other beaches on the island. By taking down these stairs, you're removing a bow from Oahu's strings, you need to make the most of your tourist capital and increase the reasons for tourists to come here. Make the Haiku Stairs a properly funded tourist attraction. You could take the stairs down and build new - purpose built - stairs in the same place. Put a visitor center at the bottom. Put a view point at the top. Charge people $20 to go up. And the STATE could make money off this. And for those saying it's not possible, it's unsafe, I live in South Korea. Check out what the government has done with Hallasan - they built a safe hiking route (all wooden steps) to the highest point in the entire country, so why can't you with Haiku? Renovate the stairs, invest the money, charge a fee for tourists to hike to the top (note, in Korea there's no fee, but Korea's government is less profit driven). It's pretty simple, I think.

My testimony is below or attached. Good afternoon, I have yet to hike these stairs, however the experiences that I've read about and the passion we have for these stairs and their story should be embraced. The reason these were built, their story and the countless joy they bring to the souls brave enough to hike them to enjoy the beautiful views and experiences that they provide shouldn't be taken lightly nor ignored. Destroying these stairs would not only be a waste of money and resources, more importantly you're destroying experiences, memories that have not yet happened and beauty. I understand the neighborhoods grief and woes. Having lived in Lanikai for a stint, my family endured the constant traffic from the pill box hikers, however, It was never brought up to close it down or destroy the path. These are experiences with nature and the beauty of this island. It's not as though these are gatherings of negativity or juvenile actions, these are simply people wanting to experience something different. Something powerful and historic. Please, I implore you to make the right decision and do not destroy these stairs. Mahalo. Tom Renville.

Removing the Haiku stairs would be removing a piece of history that has an important place in Oahu's story. The cost of removal would also add an unnecessary strain on the budget. I oppose removal of the stairs. Last year I was fortunate enough to experience them and the impact it left on me has been life changing. Not once did I feel unsafe. In fact, I felt more at risk hiking koko crater. The only part of that hike which I felt at risk was when the security guard on duty sprayed motor oil at the top of a hill to intentionally threaten the risk of falling. There is no doubt that if these stairs are removed, people will find a way to reach the top, and the Moanalua ridge trail, being as dangerous as it is is not where inexperienced people should be out exploring. The pros outweigh the cons of keeping these stairs in tact and regulating access.

The Haiku Stairs are an important piece of history dating back from World War II. They were an intrinsic part of the island during this time, and I believe it is extremely important to leave that piece of history alone. This is something that should be taught to our children, not torn down and forgotten.

The memories made during this climb have stayed with my family for generations. These stairs hold a special place in the hearts of thousands. This also is a tourist hot spot that brings people from all over the world to do that specific climb. Why look to destroy when we can renovate instead? If parks in each state made the decision to destroy the climbs that people have done and passed on through the times what would be left? The old can be made new again instead of discarding it.

I am against the removal of the stairs. I think it would be in the best interest to find an organization this is willing to repair the stairs to make them a safer hike for the residents of Hawaii and tourists. Removing them would be removing a part of history. This hike is beautiful and a challenge that people love to conquer. I would love the the Board of Water Supply and the State of Hawaii to vote for keeping the stairs there and to find an organization to repair them!

These stairs represent years of local Hawaii history. They also provide a reason for many tourists to want to visit Oahu. Without these stairs, I would have simply just went to Maui and never stopped on Oahu to hike the treacherous 11 mile roundtrip trek. With having these stairs, I spent over $1,000 on Oahu alone, adding to your local economy, for an exploration that was significantly challenging, but all worth it.

I feel the Haiku stairs are unique and special to Hawaii. Walking these stairs allows an individual to really appreciate the land, nature, and environment. Now more than ever, people need to be made aware of our beautiful land, surroundings, and environment. These stairs can help raise awareness to preserve and maintain our environment by showing how beautiful it is from the vantage point of these stairs.

The costs to remove the Haiku Stairs are way higher than the costs to keep it. It is a beautiful and challenging hike and a magnet for hiker's, just to see the stairs from the top and enjoy the view. The Haiku Stairs should be kept and restored as for many years it's been one of the most interesting and amazing spots on the island of Oahu. It's not only about the beauty but also about the history. Removing the Haiku stairs is like removing an important monument or a historical site here on the island of Oahu.

I have not personally visited Haiku Stairs but have read countless stories, have seen countless pictures enough to say that this place should be one of the wonders of the world. To tear it down I believe would not stop people from continuing to hike those mountains and would be disastrous. I truly believe it would be better to establish a ticket system where people can safely go up there and charge for a permit. This way it gives revenue to Hawaii and it's people but also let's foreigners enjoy one of Oahu's wonders. Thank you for reading this and take care. Aloha!

I think the stairs should be preserved and maintained to keep their history alive. We are losing to many historical sites. The stairs could become a tourist attraction by charging a fee. This would help with maintenance and raise money for the area to help address the needs of the residents to somehow help with their privacy issues. The history should be persevered. The beauty of the island should be accessible to anyone. And the stunning views should be know around the world. Please save the stars!

It was a picture of the Haiku Stairs that first generated my personal interest in coming to Hawaii. Since going there for my first time in December of last year I was overwhelmed with joy and appreciation for the incredibly beautiful nature of the Hawaiian Islands. I believe destroying the Haiku Stairs would be a terrible tragedy. Preserving and allowing others to enjoy the nature and beauty of Hawaii should be of utmost importance. Understandably there will be costs involved with maintaining the stairs but that's something that could be crowdfunded. Aloha, Will

It is hard to really put into words what the Haiku Stairs mean to me. You cannot describe what happens on that hike, but people find themselves. They are challenged physically and mentally all the while feeling 100% SAFE. Being on top of Pu'ukeahiakahoe changes people. It would be the ultimate shame to deprive others of this opportunity. Regardless of whether or not the stairs remain standing, people will find a way to climb to the top of Pu'ukeahiakahoe. The stairs are, without a doubt, the safest way to reach the top. During a time on the top of Pu'ukeahiakahoe, two individuals came into the pillbox. They were drenched. Covered in mud. They had hiked up the legal side using Moanalua Valley Trial. They looked terrified. They talked about how scary and dangerous their hike was; and instead of descending back down the legal side, they came down the stairs. Had they gone back down Moanalua Valley Trial, I'm not sure they would've made it. People have DIED hiking the legal trial. People have fallen to their death on the legal side. The only recorded death on the Haiku Stairs since it was opened was from a heart attack. Hawaii could greatly benefit from making the Haiku Stairs legal. This hike could become a huge revenue generator. With managed access and control, the neighborhood nuisance could be essentially eliminated. Please consider the effects of what removing the stairs could mean. People will continue to hike this ridge. They will continue to cause a nuisance to the neighborhood. They will cause extreme erosion issues alongside the ridge like has been caused on Moanalua Valley Trail. Removal of the stairs is not the answer.

Please don't remove the Haiku Stairs. It would cause severe damage to the surrounding fauna and wildlife to tear down the stairs as they have been there for so long that the surrounding environment has already well adapted and it is part of the ecosystem for the wildlife and fauna. Big changes such as tearing them down would only serve to cause harm and disruption. The Stairs have also been one of the most majestic hiking experiences of my life and I want others to be able to experience it as well. It would be absolutely devastating if these stairs were torn down. I think there are other ways to achieve your goals such as managed access. PLEASE DON'T TEAR DOWN THE STAIRS.

The Ha'iku stairs hold historic value and there really have been no documented serious injuries or deaths when people were allowed to hike. It's become a famous landmark and hike even for tourists around the world. If there's really a financial issue, because it's vey well known, a few could be imposed to hike the trail.

I oppose the removal of Haiku Stairs. Haiku stairs are a great attraction for tourists. The beauty of Oahu is that you can access to any hiking spot within 2 hours. Even for Japanese tourists, hiking is becoming a great entertainment when they come to Hawaii, and it is part of your responsible tourism educating tourists the beauty of the nature and emotional connection to the natural environment. I am sure it works well when you give hikers a ticket or permission with a little payment, you might have enough budget to get some broken parts fixed. I would appreciate it if you consider my opinion when considering of taking them off due to the safety reasons. Thank you.

The Haiku Stairs is what brought me to Hawaii a year ago. Interest in the stairs let me to read up on Oahu's history and beauty which is showcased from the stairs. One can see most of the island for those steps. Hiking on them should be discouraged of course but viewing them legally is attainable and a realistic alternative to the many that want to see them. The world wide draw stemming from these stairs to your island should not be something you wish to destroy but something Oahu should cherish and preserve.

I have never been to this trail but I HAVE been to Koko Head. Trails like these need to be preserved so people can relatively safely travel them. The haiku stairs or stairway to heaven is a favorite amongst locals and a bucket list must do someday type of adventure for tourists. You can find it on social media sites like Pinterest being shared as top rated hikes from people all over the world. Hawai'i is full of beautiful places like this that seem to sadly be taken away one by one. It would be nice if somehow other methods of providing access or limiting liability Of the state on trails like this and others could become a solution instead of closing everything. There cannot be signs warning of danger or fences put up at every beautiful landmark in fear of someone tripping and suing. There should be more at your own risk type of laws when it comes to nature. People are allowed to repel from cliffs or dive off of rocks or jump out of planes, but can't be held responsible for what happens to them on a hike??

I just want to voice my opinion to please find a way to save this hike that so many of us love. Thank you!

My testimony is below or attached.

Save the stairs! I traveled to Oahu over spring break and they were one of the things I wanted to hike but I found out it was illegal. It seems like they are still one of the safest and most beautiful ridge hikes without being maintained. I've heard the Moanalua trail (the legal way to the stairs) is very dangerous. Imagine the long term results if some effort was put into them. Yes, the original cost is a lot, but there are many tourists who can afford to pay up to do that hike. According to Hawaiiinewsnow.com, it is estimated that 4,000 hike the stairs yearly despite the possible consequences. Because I did some looking around before my trip, I know that many of the 4,000 hikers took a local "tour guide", even I was considering it, for $200 each, because it significantly lowers your chances with the $1000 fine. There is money to be made in the stairs along with promoting the beauty of Hawaii. If the resorts were able to recommend this hike to its guests, the number of hikers would increase significantly. According to Hawaii travel guide, an average of 500,000 people visit Oahu each month. If the resorts could get 1% of those visitors to hike the mountain and you charged $50 each, that is $250,000 total revenue per month. If you spend $2 million in maintenance, you will make that money back in 8 months. The rest is profit. If you continue even charging $20 each (total revenue of 1.2 million yearly if 1% hike), the return on your original investment is still 120%. This is an opportunity for the government of Hawaii to make money to improve the island and I would hate to see it go to waste. Investing the money into the stairs will perform over 10x better than investing it in the stock market. The Haiku stairs are a good investment for the Hawaiian government and will add another safe and beautiful hike to the island. It is a win-win for everyone and it would be a shame to waste it.

Thank you for hearing out your Iowan Supporter,
Jacob McCredie

I am from New Zealand. I came to Hawaii in 2018 and illegally hiked Haiku stairs. This was easily one of the best days of my life. The whole experience was magical, the stair way very safe with the help of an experienced guide. I believe this should be kept open and be a paid experience, with very experienced guides taking people in small groups. This is a piece of Hawaii's history, and the view from the top seriously unreal.

The legal route looked terrifying, narrow ridges with no where to hold. I found the stairs only missing a step in a few places, therefore maintaince would make this safer. Take this from someone living in another part of the world taking time to write this, what you have with the Haiku stairs is extremely wonderful. For me, it bet climbing Machu Picchu.

Please don't tear the stairway down. Why not repair it and charge a small fee to climb it. Even if it's halfway and preserve the rest . That will stop complaining neighbors,preserve wildlife at the top and charging a small fee to climb will pay for upkeep.

Aloha,

I support the Board of Water Supply's Final Environmental Impact Statement's proposed action to remove the Haiku Stairs.

It makes no sense to pass the ongoing Board of Water Supply maintenance costs and liability to the City who wants to either manage or contract out the management of the Haiku Stairs. The City & County budgets and personnel are already stretched thin just handling the current projects under their umbrella. As it is, the City & County is struggling to maintain the Koko Head Trail and the all problems that came with it. Why add an additional burden that the City & County (us taxpayers) can't afford?

The Haiku Stairs were not built to be a hiking trail, don't make them one.

The disruptions that have been caused to the surrounding Kaneohe neighborhoods, trespassing, littering, and vandalism to name a few will continue and should be stopped. Posting signs to deter misbehavior has never, over the past nineteen years been effective in eliminating trespassers accessing the Haiku Stairs. Please remove them.

Hikers that want to take in the beautiful view still have access to the area from the Moanalua side.

It's time for the Board of Water Supply to make a decision and authorize the removal of the Haiku Stairs as recommended in the Final Environmental Impact Statement.

Respectively submitted.

David Martin.

Please consider keeping and upgrading the stairs. It's an incredible experience that could even help tourism/economy if the managing, upkeep and marketing were improved.

The experience and heritage of the trail, the area and the views is absolutely incredible and a very deep, moving experience that should be encouraged and shared.

Keeping the trail open and determining how best to improve the safety and maintenance of the trail to share this beautiful peace of Hawaii with the rest of the world, that is what needs to be decided.

Good afternoon, I have yet to hike these stairs, however the experiences that I've read about and the passion we have for these stairs and their story should be embraced. The reason these were built, their story and the countless joy they bring to the souls brave enough to hike them to enjoy the beautiful views and experiences that they provide shouldn't be taken lightly nor ignored. Destroying these stairs would not only be a waste of money and resources, more importantly you're destroying experiences, memories that have not yet happened and beauty. I understand the neighborhoods grief and woes. Having lived in Lanikai for a stint, my family endured the constant traffic from the pill box hikers, however,

It was never brought up to close it down or destroy the path. These are experiences with nature and the beauty of this island. It's not as though these are gatherings of negativity or juvenile actions, these are simply people wanting to experience something different. Something powerful and historic. Please, I implore you to make the right decision and do not destroy these stairs. Mahalo. Tom Renville.

Hello to whom concern,

Dear board members, you will have an opportunity to make a difference by voting whether to tear down the Haiku Stairs. I wish in your dear hearts you decide not to tear down the stairs. I have not had the opportunity to climb them, but I have been dreaming to claim them for past several years. I hope to one day have the privilege to climb them.

Last several years I have not had the opportunity to do so because my goal was to finish nursing school and become a nurse. After achieving this goal and now that we are facing quarantine time. I have come to the conclusion that sharing this beautiful world with others is what brings people together.

I pray that one day the locals and the state of Hawaii can make the Haiku Stairs a legal attraction and make it safer for climbers. I wish that for a fee people can climb the stairs, which the income may benefit the people of Hawaii.

Taking care of patients I listen to there dreams and desires. I have learned that life is short. And I hope that through the stairs many people can become friends with Hawaii residents. There is so much we can learn from one another. Sharing Hawaii's culture can and will enrich many people's lives.

Thank you for taking the time and opportunity to read my letter.

May your decision enrich many generations to come.

Sincerely,

Maria Musiyaka RN

I would like to submit testimony to the Board of Water Supply Board of Directors regarding Haiku Stairs.

My testimony is below or attached.

My submission

The Ha'ikū Stairs has been a place of transformative power for decades - changing countless lives since it was built. The mountain peak they climb, Pu'ukeahiakahoe, has a magical effect on souls - and is exactly the influence we need in civilization during this critical point in earth's history!

For the State of Hawaii, managed access can be a revenue generator, rather than a liability. Removing or relocating the stairs creates more exposure for the State. If the stairs are moved or destroyed, people will still climb Pu'ukeahiakahoe via a hazardous route (Moanalua Valley Trail). There have been countless rescues of inexperienced hikers on Moanalua Valley Trail and the surrounding ridges of the KST.

To illustrate, I once got a call that two hikers were lost trying to get to the stairs via the legal way. 6 hours later (at 2am) I found them huddled where they stopped while descending the nearly sheer faces of the cliffs overlooking Kaneohe, quite literally steps from falling to their death. They were hiking the legal way. So many stories that began with people hoping to reach the amazing views of Kaneohe legally, have paradoxically ended miserably, expensively, even tragically. The most recent death on the legal way was a young local boy from Big Island.

There has been only one death on the Ha'ikū Stairs since it was built in 1942. That was a heart attack in 2006 - a McDonald's issue. The phenomenal engineering and impressive track record makes the Ha'ikū Stairs the safest ridge hike in Hawaii.

The stairs also eliminate erosion caused by thousands of footsteps. Moanalua Valley Trail is alarmingly eroded, whereas Ha'ikū Stairs shows zero erosion. The steel steps take all the abuse and leave the mountain intact and preserved.

With managed access, the neighborhood nuisance can be easily eliminated as outlined extensively in Friends of Ha'ikū Stairs proposals.

It has been called the Eiffel Tower of Hawaii, and I've known of people visiting Hawaii for just 48 hours - only to climb the stairs. This staircase is of utmost importance to Hawaii's international allure and local economy.

There is so much heart in the walls of that building up there. So many tears have been shed on that mountain. So many stories of a day on Pu'ukeahiakahoe that forever changed the way people see their life. The staircase is not only historic monument and a national treasure, it is a spiritual treasure beyond words.

I urge anyone considering destruction of the Ha'ikū Stairs to first survey them, and linger at the top. Bring food and something warm. Don't let me change your mind. The mountain does that easily.

Kind regards

Zach Garnett

This is a huge piece of history, a breathtaking experience, and a tourist attraction with a lot of potential for revenue on sight. This is in addition to the revenue it attracts to the state of Hawaii from pictures of its grievous videos and word of mouth recommendations about ones amazing trip to Hawaii which included the haiku stairs.

I see no reason to tear down this price of history other than the residents who live nearby complaining similarly to every other tourist attraction in the U.S.. My vote is an investment in this hike and experience. Similar to diamond head and the pillbox hikes.

I've lived in Hawaii for 15 yrs and climbed the stairs countless times. It is a sacred place and holds a special place in my heart. I want my children to be able to enjoy it some day and their children. It would be such a shame and a waste to take down the stairs. It is our constitutional right to be able to enjoy the beauty and nature of Hawaii. Only one person has died on the stairs from a heart attack unrelated to the hike. That is no reason to spend our tax dollars to take something we don't want to be taken down. It is our right as humans to take risks every day. Please listen to the people and look at different options. Shouldn't this be voted on anyways? Such an integral part of our state? Please do not take down the stairs. Doing so, would crush our spirits.

Dear Board Members:

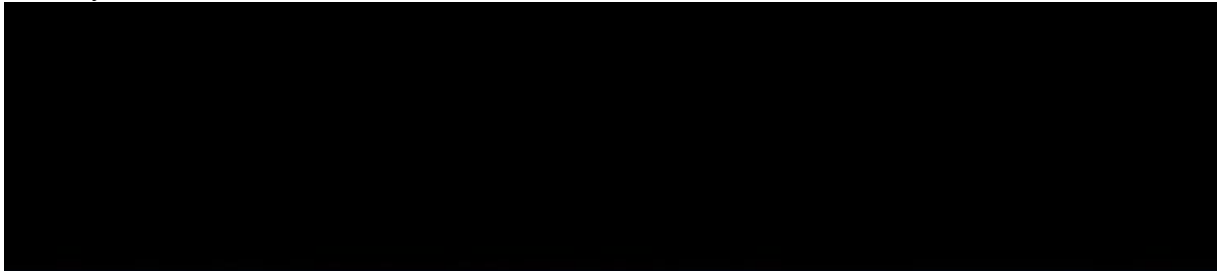

I am writing as a non-resident, a tourist of your beautiful city. In 2016, I hiked the Haiku Stairs. My fellow hikers and I carefully avoided trudging through homes or yards. On the climb, I was in awe of the absolutely beautiful views and the unfortunate state previous hikers had left the top of the stairs in. The peak of the hike is littered with garbage. I and the folks I hiked with filled our packs with as much trash as we could before we descended, but it barely made a dent. It's very disappointing how disrespectful some folks can be.

It's my hope that the near million dollars budgeted to demolish the stairs would instead be directed to privatize the stairs, construct a parking area away from residential homes, charge a fee (especially one to non-locals like myself), and clean up the stairs. I would imagine you could even find volunteers to do the initial cleanup work. I've traveled a lot and seen some beautiful landscapes and vantage points, from Angel's Landing at Zion National Park to watching the salmon run in Olympic National Park, and the Haiku Stairs trump them all. It would be such a shame for this gorgeous landmark to be destroyed, and it's unfair as it stands currently, for residents to be continually disrupted by those hikers who are inconsiderate.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Lindsay Furtak

I lived on O'ahu for a period of time for an internship for school. Every day I drove through the H3 tunnel towards Kānēohe and could see people summiting the mountains via the stairs. It was always my favorite part of the commute. I worked on the Hawaii State Hospital construction project and could see people on the stairs from our office. I was always envious of the hikers but it wasn't until I climbed the stairs myself that I realized just how incredible they were. I always tried my best to respect the culture knowing I wasn't from there originally, but the view at the satellite at the top put everything into a whole new perspective. I began to appreciate the beauty of the island on an entirely new level. Haiku Stairs are synonymous with Hawaii. It would be a tragedy for future generations to not have the opportunity to climb such an iconic set of stairs.

Please save the stairs

From 1983 to 1984, I lived in Hawaii. I attended Kaiser High School and during the week, I would walk from home on Hahaione to school and then walk from school to Hanauma Bay or Sunny's. Hawaii has always been about the scenery and the views from the beaches and from the mountains. I even wrote a song about it in a Brown Bags concert.

To think that there is even consideration in ripping something out that would give much pleasure to people, let alone cause more harm to the mountain in doing so, doesn't seem right. Leave the stairs. If you're looking at maintenance costs, perhaps you could consider what they do up here in Canada with the highways or with zoo animals. We adopt them and give monies to keep them in good condition.

Hawaii has always been a magical place for me and so many of my friends and family. Let it continue to be.

Sending you and yours much aloha spirit.

I would like to submit testimony to the Board of Water Supply Board of Directors regarding Haiku Stairs.

I know the Board is very concerned about the safety of the people— locals, tourists & the neighborhoods surrounding the Ha'ikū Stairs.

We all want everyone to be safe.

Removing the Ha'ikū stairs may cause more harm than good.

The legal way to hike the top is very dangerous. And more people will take that route if the stairs are removed. This will create more opportunities for injury and even death.

The stairs provide safety & security.

They are a part of Hawaii. They are a part of the souls who have climbed them. And they are a part of our country's history.

Please find a way to help more people experience the magic of the Ha'ikū Stairs in a safe, place economical, undisturbing way.

The stairs have protected the mountain from the erosion that many hikers can cause.

There must be a way for The Board if Water Supply to direct the traffic of climbers, have them sign a waiver releasing liability and hikers would gladly pay a fee to experience the climb.

Fees could help maintain the stairs and create an even better experience PLUS provide additional income for the Board of Water Supply.

In Montana, to float the Missouri River, you must enter a lottery and be chosen to float.
A similar thing could be done here.

Thank you for reading.

My testimony is below or attached.

The haiku stairs, known as the stairway to heaven, is an iconic place that is renowned locally and internationally. Stripping it away would be stripping away trust, hope, love, faith and strength attached to this place, that is part of the island, that people all over the world connect with. Please consider letting the island remain as is. During this time, to take a pause and cherish the things that keep people strong in their hearts and soul. To provide hope.

I am writing to you to put a stop with taking down the haiku stairs. I hiked the legal way of haiku and witness this magnificent creation. This beautiful creation is history and I would want my future generation to see this for as long as it's there. Please don't take it down. I hope you take this into consideration.

I would like to submit testimony to the Board of Water Supply Board of Directors regarding Haiku Stairs.

My testimony is below or attached.

My name is Chad Dorr. I am a resident of Santa Rosa, CA. I am likely not your typical respondent — someone who is not a resident of Oahu and someone who has never hiked the stairs (yet, but would like to do so, legally). As such you may be tempted to dismiss my comments, but I hope that you will not.

I am a 25 year Navy veteran who has made a couple of port visits to Pearl. Since my retirement I hadn't had the opportunity to plan a trip to the islands, but was beginning to do so when I started to see friends post messages about the stairs on social media. I am a hiking enthusiast and had pretty much narrowed down my choices to Kauai and Hawaii. Given my limited resources I simply could not include Oahu in that trip. However, if the stairs were open and available for hiking (legally) I would be very much inclined to consider taking my tourist dollars to Oahu instead.

I understand that Oahu generally does not hurt for tourists (COVID notwithstanding). But not everyone who comes to the islands wants to lay out on Honolulu beach or snorkel in Hanauma Bay. Improving the diversity of activities to include spectacular, challenging hikes like the Stairs is a good thing. Yes, I know there are other good hikes available for those who are already visiting Oahu, but this would be a destination climb, like Alpe d'Huez is for bikers.

I know you won't do this for Chad Dorr (nor should you). But there are millions of Chad Dorrs around the world who would come to Oahu to hike the Stairs, meaning even more tourist dollars without increasing the burden on more traditional tourist sites.

Thank you for your consideration.

I would like to submit testimony to the Board of Water Supply Board of Directors regarding Haiku Stairs.

My testimony is below.

I'm writing to the board to provide my support to keep Haiku stairs and to provide controlled access to their use. The stairs are an icon and have worldwide recognition. The state of Hawaii has benefited enormously from tourism but the one thing that has been lacking on its part is to provide a well rounded experience for both residents and visitors that isn't completely focused on hotels and shopping. Haiku stairs are an example of not only an opportunity to allow individuals with the rare ability to climb and stand one of the most spectacular views in the world, but also to feel closer to their god in a way no other view on Oahu gives. I believe that preserving the stairs for future generations and allowing a controlled access of the stairs where individuals can pay to climb the stairs (maybe limiting the number per hour and providing people with an educational experience before proceeding as well as a demonstration of fitness and ability to climb) would be something both for the states and the public benefit. I propose for the board to make it an excursion of some kind similar to New Zealand's bungee jumping off a Kawarau bridge or Sydney's bridge climb, with guides, a large fee and an educational center with a parking lot and access that doesn't involve people sneaking in from the neighborhood and causing noise. The investment would preserve an icon on the Windward side and probably result in an additional tourist attraction that would rival some of the best in the world. Mahalo for your work and I hope you consider the beautiful icon Haiku (Stairway to Heaven) is a landmark to preserve.

Please don't remove these stairs. There is an opportunity to save millions by just repairing the damaged stairs and not have to pay for a guard to watch over them. You might even make money if you charged a fee to hike them. This is such a draw for people. I am one of them and I've yet to hike them because it's illegal. It is a dream of mine to one day hike that beautiful mountain, up those stairs

I would like to submit testimony to the Board of Water Supply Board of Directors regarding Haiku Stairs.

My testimony is below or attached.

My name is Karen Bischoff and I am a resident of Maui, however I frequently find myself on Oahu for my love of Hiking. I have hiked on the Moanalua Ridge Trail, legal way to reach stairs, seven times now. Two different times I was forced to go down the stairs as my exit because the conditions were so treacherous on Moanalua I could not get back down that way. Both times the erosion and muddy terrain were so bad I thought I would simply fall to my death, One time a pop-up storm was so bad I thought I was going to blow off the ridge that was knife edge. It was never my intention to go down the stairs knowing it is illegal. But I took my chances because I knew it was the safer route.

I have never felt unsafe on the stairs,

When I made that decision to go down the stairs I had a huge sigh of relief knowing that I "was going to make it."

I've seen all of the controversy on the stairs for years now but I truly believe that there is an easier way out of all of this.

The stairs already exist so why spend the money to tear them down or move them or something that is so costly when they're already there. The money is already put forth for security. It would probably cost much less for somebody to stand there and collect money as an entry fee.

The amount of people on the stairs entering at one time can also be limited or tickets for timeslots can be sold so that there's not a mass amount of people in the neighborhood or by the school at one time.

I think that this could very easily be managed whereas money can be made for the state and not create a bill for the state.

Thank you.

Respectfully submitted,

My testimony is below or attached.

Hello everyone. I'd like for you to reconsider the removal of the Haiku Stairs. The Stairway to heaven climb is a historical landmark that the public deserves some sort of access to. It is consistently rated top 3 of all the hiking trails in the world! Being a hiking enthusiast, and having done hikes all over the country as well as overseas, I can easily see why. It has been shown in numerous outdoor magazines with breathtaking pictures and is what inspired myself and many others to consider going to Hawaii versus many of the other tropical islands we can go to. Instagram influencers inspire hoards of people to go to Hawaii with their iconic picture of the stairs. There are many spots along those stairs that are simply breathtaking to say the least. Surely that helps generate tourism and more money for Hawaii (Legally or illegally). With the right maintenance and business structure, those stairs have the potential to generate even more money.

Hawaii has always been my favorite destination.... literally number one! I've done all the other hikes in Hawaii, but the single hike that completely changed my view of Hawaii were those stairs. Knowing the history of those stairs inspired me and many others to dive deeper into the history as well as the culture of Hawaii. It has inspired me to come back to Hawaii numerous times with my last trip being a month long stay. Those stairs and the remnants of those buildings have a magical presence. They help you put perspective into life. Looking out into Hawaii after a strenuous climb gives you a sense of accomplishment. When you look out there perched so high up and realizing that you are so small, you can't help but to feel that everything in life is going to be okay. It gives you a sense of peace. It was and still is one of many life changing moments for so many people.

My current view and personal experience of the natives of Hawaii are that of peacefulness and nature loving. If you have the spirit of Hawaii in you, then please, climb those stairs, and when you reach the top, feel the breath being taken away from you from the sights and sense of accomplishment. Watch the birds fly below you and feel the wind blowing around you.... be at peace at that moment in this crazy world and then consider leaving those stairs for everyone else in the world to enjoy

Sincerely,

We went hiking the Moanalua Valley Trail Start (Kulana'ahane) during our honeymoon on O'ahu in 2019. It was one of the toughest and most enjoyable trails we ever did! We hoped to get to see the Haiku stairs at the end of the trail but had to return due to very muddy conditions and rainfall. We would love to return to the unique Hawaiian islands within the next couple years and see the stairs from „the other side“ in a safe and legal way which also supports the nice people of Hawaii and their interesting beautiful culture. I really hope there is a way to preserve this precious spot.

Best regards and see you soon

To Whom it May Concern,

I personally feel removing the Haiku Stairs would be a mistake. It's apart of history. You would be removing a World War II relic. Furthermore it has provided fond memories for hikers of all kinds with its spectacular views. I have hiked all over this country and personally don't feel it is dangerous. The stairs are well maintained except for a small section and are far less dangerous compared to many other hikes not only on this island but other locations. Please consider another way to keep these stairs as an incredible piece of Oahu history.

Thank you for reading.

As a born and raised Hawai'i local resident, I would like to voice my opinion and say that I am strongly against tearing down the Haiku Stairs. It is a landmark and historically beloved hike for locals. I understand that there have been injuries and possibly fatalities on this hike, but many more people have been injured at our beautiful beaches and state parks, yet we still keep them open to locals and tourists. Please keep this landmark open or focus on repairing it instead of making the cowardly choice to tear it down.

The haiku stairs are such an amazing thing to have on Oahu because of its relatively easy access combined with some of the most amazing views on Oahu. I believe the state should leave it open but manage it like how we manage the napali coast trail on Kauai.. with the revenue generated from permits the stairs can be maintained and we can also track how many people and which people are hiking for safety reasons. Nothing else in the entire world like this exists, nothing! It's literally a part of history! I've traveled once to Hawaii within the past year and decided against doing it considering the way faster way is considered illegal. It's been on my bucket list since I was 13 and I'm 22 now and I KNOW I will return to Oahu long before I die. I would absolutely LOVE to be able to legally (or at least enter at your own risk but no legal penalties... I'll sign a waiver haha) Basically these stairs mean a lot to me and I'm actually from Oklahoma. But I've heard of them my whole life and when I found out that they weren't technically legal I was devastated. Even thought about doing the "legal" way but it required WAY WAY more hiking and you barely even saw the stairs. It just killed it for me. The "illegal route" was way better but I didn't want to be a bad tourist and upset the locals (or risk a huge fee) so like I said I decided against it. I would love to be able to complete these stairs before I die. Please please reconsider fixing these stairs or again just make us all sign waivers saying we won't sue if we get hurt or die or whatever. I'd be willing to do that. I just wanna hike them more than anything. Thank you for your time. Krista Chedester of OKC OK one year ago I read about Haiku Stairs may be closed. I am from Ukraine, on the other side of the globe. Due to this closure, I decided to go to Hawaii. This was the best experience I have ever done. We hiked to Stairs using the "legal" way, 4h hike to see them and 4h back. Even if this trail would cost 200$ I would hike it anyway, this is something super cool. And it's a pity that it may be destroyed. Hope you can convert it in an expensive travel attraction. I spent about 4000$ in Hawaii in a week just to see that stair. And many other tourists will do the same, great for the economy.

Hello,

Sorry for my English :)

Hope Stairs will remain there :)

Aloha ka kou,

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this issue. I have listened to both sides of the issue and oppose the removal of Haiku Stairs.

If we were in New Zealand, our government would declare this site a historic cultural landscape and an ecological restoration site and capitalize on the unique story it encapsulates. They would effectively collaborate with all stakeholders to resolve any safety and liability issues, invest in its maintenance, post informative signs at the trailheads, offer guided interpretive hikes, and charge a fee to out-of-state visitors wanting to hike this trail that covers the operational and maintenance costs and costs of ongoing conservation work in the area.

Things are a little different here, but the fact that we are still squabbling over this issue is an international embarrassment.

Removing Haiku Stairs is like the City replacing perfectly good bus stop benches with ugly, inefficient, and poorly conceived seating "nubs"--it will cost money and does not make this city a better place to live.

Auwe and 'a'ole.

Let us please work together to make Honolulu and Hawaii a place our future generations can be proud of.

Thank you,
Kim

To whom It May Concern:

I am writing this email to implore those with voting power to save the Haiku Stairs.

You see.. the stairs have such a history.. and a spiritual and empowering sentiment to so many, both natives to Hawaii as well as countless others across the world.

For my family, the stairs signify strength and hope. A few years ago, we visited Hawaii on a Make a Wish trip, and both of my children became enamored with the mere sight of the stairs, but also the story and folklore surrounding them. Both promised themselves they would be back to Hawaii and somehow make the stairs part of their trip. And that they did, traveling to Hawaii a second time, but as healthy young adults, and hiking the MMR trail just to be near them. The very feeling of their success was something that they will carry with them for their entire lives. They will indeed be back in the very near future.

Removing the stairs would be an enormous tragedy not only for historical purposes but for the countless people that see so much more than the Haiku Stairs. To lose a symbol of hope and wonderment to so many people, and those that would never have that opportunity, would be tragic in itself.

I understand repairs and managing the stairs isn't ideal. However, managed access under a public/private group may be a viable option. Please.. I urge those with decisions making powers to explore all options, and not one of them be removal of this sacred monument.

Thank you, Nicole Myers

Date: Saturday, April 25, 2020 10:59:45 AM

The Haiku Stairs are a unique relic of World War II and should be preserved for that reason alone. Unfortunately, they have been neglected or badly managed in the past, with the result that people trying to access them have created serious disturbances to neighbors of the Stairs and understandably antagonized the community. This is a real shame as the Stairs offer a variety of exciting options for exercise, adventure, and the possibility of viewing our rare wet cliff flora, that no other facility in the State can provide. With proper management, parking can be provided in the back of the valley, away from the neighborhood, and educational facilities constructed there. Climbing the Stairs is a unique experience that is valued by people from all over the world. Fees to cover the cost of parking and of personnel who can supervise the visitors and screen out those who are not fit to do the climb could be charged. The Stairs are widely known and attract many residents as well as visitors and could become a major tourist attraction for the State. If properly handled, the legitimate concerns of the neighborhood can be addressed and resolved. It would be a tragedy to spend more money to destroy something that could be turned into a money-earning attraction instead!
